NEWS BROADCASTS | Uncle Ray's Corner MUNICH WAS OLD HEADQUARTERS OF AUSTRIAN-BORN HITLER

A few weeks ago, a new "Berline war joke" was reported. This is how it went:
Hitler, Goering and Goebbels were talking about what would happen to them after the war.
"They won't hurt me," said Goering. "The British will need my help to build up the RAF again."

They won't hurt me," said in the statmer in 1s2s, one of the statmer in which he was busy, but no one said anything to me about him. He was far from being well known at that time, either in Germany or elsewhere.

In November, 1923, however, Hitler tried to lead a "rebellion." In this effort he was joined by friends who had been in the statmer. again.

again."
"I am going to be all right, too," said Goebbels. "Fresident Roose-known as "the beer hall putsch," the rebellion failed to get very far. Hitler escoped with his life, but was sentenced to prison for out in the cold."

"Don't be crazy," replied Hitler, was made—he was allowed to "They will never touch me! I am leave the prison after serving only not a German! I am an Austrian!" eight months of his term.
That story is a bit funny, but it is almost entirely "out of gear."

No one in Great Britain or the United States will care for any "help" from either Goebbels or Goering.

A point in the story which is true is the statement that Hitler is an Austrian, not a German. The little nation known as Austria must suffer the disgrace of being his birthplace.

If Hitler had stayed in Austria

it is hardly likely that he could have brought such harm to the world. Working in a small country he probably could not have started a world war even if he had gained full control.

Ill fortune took him to Munich during his early twenties. That city had to put up with him until the outbreak of the first World war, and for several years after the war was over. He fought in the German army as a private rising only to the rank of corporal
