

New Talent Result Of Movie Manpower Shortage

Screen Heroes Cropping Up In Emergency

Not to draw the attention of the Mr. James F. Byrnes nor the remarks of John Q. Public, but all the lamenting in Hollywood seems to have passed and all that's come out of the manpower shortage is a flock of new talent that would make the eye of any producer dance a jig of dollar marks.

With an all-male cast of "action" performers, including Errol Flynn, William Prince, Henry Hull, George Tobias, Dick Erdman, Warner Anderson and many other capable players, the latest film drama, "Objective, Burma," now plays on the screen of the Ohio theatre. This is the anticipated season of parachute shock troops dropped into the dark Burma jungles long before Allied fighters crack back at the Japs. Hollywood veterans are unanimous in their salute to Gregory Peck, the new screen sensation who appears as Francis "Shoeshorn" Cronin, a U. S. Army sergeant. "The Keys of the Kingdom" now playing at the Quilna theatre. It is a point of military strategy from which Peck essays a series of paratrooper missions and difficult over-land expeditions in a Hollywood actor, at a time of the most comprehensive ever attempted for the screen.

You'll all heartily of the "zero-sum" theory—believe it or not, the Sigma has a "zero-sum" some" too. The two pictures "House of Frankenstein" and "The Mummy's Curse" are two children which keep on top of the edge of your seat. In "The Mummy's Curse," one of the popular and exciting pictures, Lon Chaney, in the starring role, is noted for the numerous horror pictures in which he has played. One could easily find the idea that the actor lives in a cob-walled castle, dives on a row of bats, and walks in his sleep. You'll find out when you see the picture. You're not with deafness because of a disease of the spine, pretty Loretta Young plays the feminine lead in "And Now Tomorrow" currently playing at the State theatre. Her leading man is none other than Alan Ladd. This is

Gene Tierney Guest Artist Of Charlie McCarthy Show
When Charlie McCarthy invites Gene Tierney to his Sunday airshow he'll not only have to worry about the competition from Edgar Bergen and Don Ameche but also the servicemen at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Corona, Calif., where the program will originate. The half-hour broadcast is heard at 7 p. m., Lima time, over WEAZ.
Jim Lawton and Gloria, his "Hollywood Mystery Time" secretary are confronted with a foul murder but they have something to crow about before the close of "The Case of the Pie-Eyed Parrot" on Sunday at 8:15 p. m., over Station WJZ.
An innocent victim of circumstances, as usual, William Bendix, as Remy, faces charges of cheating during a school exam, in his comedy drama, "The Life of Riley," Sunday at 9 p. m., over Station WJZ. Still attending night school to try to improve his English, Riley catches another student cheating... and his efforts to cover up for the friend direct the teacher's suspicions on Riley himself. By superhuman effort (and subhuman reasoning), Riley manages to clear himself without implicating his classmate.
Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., describes the international finance plan worked out by representatives of 44 allied nations last summer at Bretton Woods and now before congress for approval, in a talk over Station WJZ, Monday, at 12:30 p. m. The talk will originate at a luncheon of the Detroit (Mich.) Economic club.
