Barclay on Bridge

Among the good reasons for refusal to hold up your ace on the first trick at No Trumps is the chance of building up some lower honor in your own hand or the dummy. On many an occasion, a declarer does not realize how big the can make little cards and kings and queens become. It can knock off a card like the queen or jack with his ace. Sometimes the extra trick promoted by that process means the difference between making his contract and getting set.

Barclay on Bridge

Among the good reasons for refusal to hold up your ace on the first trick at No Trumps is the chance of building up some lower honor in your own hand or the dummy. On many an occasion, a declarer does not realize how big the can make little cards and kings and queens become. It can knock off a card like the queen or jack with his ace. Sometimes the extra trick promoted by that process means the difference between making his contract and getting set.
