

Pat O'Brien Heads Cast Of Lyric's "Secret Command"

Scarcely a day goes by without seeing something about a shipyard in the nation's press. It should therefore be welcome news to the movie-going public to learn that a picture dealing with the behind-the-scenes workings of one of America's largest is now showing at the Lyric theatre.

This picture is "Secret Command" starring Pat O'Brien and Carole Landis and featuring Chester Morris. Just as it did in the magazine story, the picture is said to contain vicious and thrilling fights and exciting episodes of heroism while America's workers perform their home-front battle night and day.

A new Abbott and Costello picture is something to look forward to for people who enjoy a good laugh. However their latest film, "Here Come the Co-Eds," is not only another hilarious treat, but a movie spiked with so many additional entertainment elements that the line had better start forming at the right, right now! "Here Come the Co-Eds" can now be seen at the Ohio theatre.

Generally, characters in the daily pages of the newspapers remain stationary as far as age is concerned. But, it is a lucky thing for the movies that this rule doesn't hold in the "Blondie" comic strip. Time stands still in such notable examples as Percy Crosby's "Skippy," the crawling infant "Sweetpea" in "Popeye" and many others. At the Quina theatre the picture "Leave It To Blondie" will show that comic strip characters, like wine, have to age to be good.

"This Man's Navy" the picturization of the Navy's lighter-than-airships is probably one of the most authentic pictures ever made. Almost 75 per cent of the picture was shot at Navy air bases at Santa Ana and Del Mar, Calif. and Lakehurst, N. J. What's more, the remaining 25 per cent was filmed on movie sets that were actual duplicates of offices and quarters used by officers and men of the three bases.

A picture that you will never forget is the film "Frenchman's Creek" now showing at the State theatre and starring Arturo de Cordova and Joan Fontaine. The colorful era has more color added to it by the fact that the scenes were filmed in technicolor.
