Webster tells us that, "a patriot is one who loves his country and zealously guards its welfare."

How patriotic are we, anyway? How many of us have a definite design as to how we should meet emergencies that effect the welfare of our country and then have the courage to defend those convictions, regardless—If we love our country we also respect her, for love and respect go hand in hand.

We didn't want war, but it is here. Our patriotism is being put to the test; or, is Patriotism some.

Are we as individuals, schools, organizations, communities, societies etc. reluctant or hesitant about drawing a line on pleasures, a citivities, and entertainments? Why do we wait until we are advised to do so? Remember the boys and girls over there, their pleasures are few. If Junior or sister voices disapproval for having to stay at home a little more than usual, tell them that big brother over there in a fox-hole, with the continual roar of bombs of the islands where waiting for the next move seems endless and the monotony almost unbearable, he would a thousand times rather be home and with a faint ray of that hope in his heart he leaves the rest to fate. Or, is it we "old sters" who find it boreing and crave diversion and gayety? If so, do we believe and remember what we tell Junior and sister and get out the checkerboard or the dominos and consider ourselves lucky?

Which is easier to face the gun of the enemy with no alternative or to face the voice of rationing and restrictions neither of which are too tough because we can go a long time yet without suffering?

Schwoeglers Win Classic Title

The bowling spotlight Friday ight was pinned on Joe Hackett, Schwoegler team anchorman, when he pounded out two honor counts to lead his mates to a photo-linish championship in the Classic league as that circuit com-pleted its season schedule with a double-header on Schwoeglers alleys. Hackett smashed out a 624 se ries on individual efforts of 221, 187, and 216, on the 7 p. m. shift, then hit the night's high count of 671 during the 9 p. m. bowling. His last total was accumulated on games of 216, 255, and 200, and enabled the Schwoegler line-up to take one out of three games, and the league flag by one game,

The control of the co thing to baseball since then, either, will the Babe sounded bitter that night in New England after he had made his debut as a wiresting referce. He seemed to think that the game hadn't done right by him.

But the Babe knows better than that. It gave him enough money so he never will have to work again—not even refereeing wrestling matches. The latter didn't help his standing any with the fans—and they have been legion—who feel that the Babe belongs in baseball.

The fact he isn't in it, is his sown fault. The Yankees offered him a chance to make good as a manager by starting out directing their farm club in Newark. But the Babe wanted the Yankees of mothing. It was nothing, for the later cold. Jake Ruppert was too much of a business man, and had too many dollars at stake, to trust his holdings to a man who didn't even know the first names of his teammates with whom he had been playing for years.
