a village named Darling. Two American states, Minnesota and Mississippi, have Darling villages.

Australia also has Darling mountains. They are on the west-Uncle Ray's Corner ern side of the continent and make up a range 300 miles long.

Western Australia has a few cittes and a number of villages, but its only city of special importance is Perth.

If you study a map of Australia, you will find that all the large cities and most of the villages, are on or near the ocean coast.

Another fact a map will tell deserts few pressure gales to risk! Another fact a map will tell you is that the great majority of the cities are on the eastern and the cities are on the eastern and southeastern edges of Australia. Such cities include Melbourne, Sydney and Brisbane.

whites were slow about exploring desert lands. One man who won fame in this field was Edward John Eyre. In 1940 Eyre set out on a trip which took him from Adelaide hundreds of miles to the west. For weeks during this trip he tramped across hot, dry desert land with only a single native as a companion. Today a good-sized Australian lake goes by the name of Lake Eyre. (For TRAVEL section of your
