Birds make their homes in many places. They use trees and bushes most often, but some of them lay eggs on the ground.

They can see in the sunshine almost as well as other birds. One of their strange habits is to bow of th of their strange habits is to bow when a human being comes close. This surely is not done for the which have "gone underground."
I am thinking of the burrowing when a human being comes close. This surely is not done for the sake of politeness. More likely holes, but in some cases they dig their own holes.

Burrowing owls live where there the visitor, from head to toe.

They are hungry birds, and some-
