

Lauded By Movie Critics, "I'll Be Seeing You" Comes To State

Telling a poignant story of two people whose lives were almost broken, yet, thru the strength each gave to the other, the film "I'll Be Seeing You" comes to the State theatre Thursday.

Three top stars have the title roles, Joseph Cotten, Ginger Rogers and Shirley Temple, and the performances have been lauded by almost every movie critic in the United States.

Here is a picture you won't want to miss—"Music For Millions" with Margaret O'Brien, Jose Iturbi, Jimmy Durante, June Allyson and Marsha Hunt. The film tells of a little girl who had faith to such an extent, that someone whom she loved very much might have an only wish. It's currently featured at the Ohio theatre.

There is simply nothing like it—and perhaps may not be for a long time. That is probably one of the best ways to describe "Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe" which is now showing at the Quilna theatre. Here is a film that has the color, actors, music and everything that goes with it that you've been asking for.

Mistaken identity can sometimes be rather embarrassing, especially if you mistake a swing singer for an opera star. That's exactly what happens in "Swing-Out Sister" now playing at the Sigma theatre and starring Rod Cameron and Frances Raeburn.

Roy Rogers is back again in another of his western hits, "San Fernando Valley" only this time he gets a girl. The film will open Thursday at the Lyric theatre.
