Zoroaster Taught That Twin Brothers Ruled the World

Fire is a friend of mankind. It heats our homes, and cooks our food.

If we think of the sun as a mass of fire, we have the greatest reason to think of fire as being important. Without the sun, no human being could live, and no plant could grow.

Long ago there were many persons who prayed to the sun. Usually the god of the sun was looked upon as the greatest of all the gods.

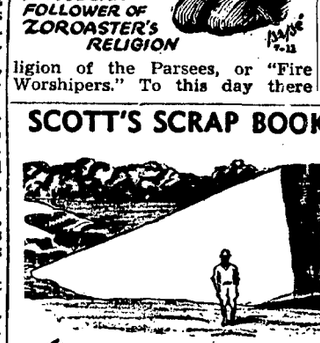
In the land known as Persia, or Iran, there grew up a religion in which people thought of fire as something holy. This was the religion of the Parsees, or "Fire Worshipers." To this day there are Parsees, but most of them live in India.

A man named Zoroaster, or Zarathustra, was the founder of the religion. He lived in Persia in ancient times. The exact date of his birth is not known, but probably it took place about 3,000 years ago.

Little is really known about Zoroaster, but myths have gathered around his name. We are told, for example, that he laughed on the very day he was born!

One old account says that Zoroaster, at the age of 30, went to a desert to live. After 20 years in the desert he appeared before the public and worked many miracles during a period of 10 years. Then, the story goes on, he went to babylon to make his home and to teach.

That account can hardly be trusted, but we have fairly good records of the beliefs of the ancient Parsees. Some of the facts were gathered by a Greek traveler who lived 2,400 years ago.



The chief god of those Persians was named Ormazd, or Mazda. He was the Good Spirit of the world. Pictures show him as a bearded man inside a circle with wings. We may figure that the circle stands for the sun.

Zoroaster taught that Ormazd had a twin brother named Ahriman. This being was said to be wicked, and always to be working against his brother.

Life Savings Lost, He Kills Man, Self

LOS ANGELES — (U.P.) — Disgruntled because horse racing "tips" caused him to squander his $20,000 life savings, Joe Newman, 70, killed a man, seriously wounded a tip sheet publisher, and then fatally shot himself, police said today.

The fracas occurred late Monday in the office of a racing tip publication, where police officers found Newman's body and that of Roy Allen Walker, 57, Pasadena, Calif.

The publisher, Dave Caplan, 44, also known as Brennan, was slumped over his desk. He was unable to answer questions.

A note in Newman's pocket read:

"I have a very good reason for this act of me doing to these dirty rats, Dave Brennan and Roy Walker. They pretended to be my best of friends, so the money they beat me out of will never do them any good."

3 Area Engineers Built on Luzon

BACOLOD, Negros — (U.P.) — Eight Wisconsin soldiers were among members of the 115th Engineers battalion of the 40th infantry division which fought for five months in the liberation of the Luzon, Panay, and Negros islands.

Madison area men included: Pfc. John P. Hendrickson, mechanic, Dodgeville; Sgt. Robert K. Hardy, unit foreman, Muscoda; and Pfc. Dale K. Russell, storekeeper, Route 1, Platteville.

The engineers, commanded by Lieut. Col. John K. Wright, Redding, Calif., rebuilt bridges, opened harbors and carved more than 150 miles of earthen roads over mountain-jungle terrain in the island offensives. They constructed the first railroad on Luzon, repaired the utility plants of Iloilo, second most important city of the Philippines, and constructed an important airfield east of Bacolod, capital city of the Negros.
