

Jack Benny Trumpet-Blowing Angel In Bright, New Film

Combining the rib-ticking antics of funny-man Jack Benny, and the blonde loveliness of Alexis Smith, one of the brightest and gayest comedies of the season, "The Horn Blows at Midnight" opens Thursday at the State theatre.

Starring Jack Benny and Alexis Smith and featuring a supporting cast of such capable performers as Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Gardiner, Dolores Moran, Guy Kibber, Franklin Pangborn, and John Alexander, the farce tells the tale of a trumpet-blowing angel who is sent down from Heaven to herald the doom of the earth on his horn. Caught in a web of mortal scheming, Athanael (as Benny is known) becomes involved in a series of situations, both hilarious and fantastic.

It's a riot of mix-ups and is certain to keep you mixed-up when you see "The Affairs of Susan" currently playing at the Ohio theatre and starring Joan Fontaine, George Brent, Dennis O'Keefe, Don DeFore, and Walter Abel. Miss Fontaine as a comedienne has, figuratively speaking, kept audiences rolling in the aisles ever since the film opened.

Two favorites which kept Broadway on fire with talk are currently showing at the Quilna theatre. The films "Tobacco Road" and "Grapes of Wrath" have received widespread praise from almost every reviewer in the United States. Both films are based on the lives of those whose main occupation is that of sharecropping.

Demands of the public must be heard by almost everyone and in the case of "China Sky," now showing at the Sigma theatre, the requests, or demands, were listened to. Both "China Sky" and "Two O'Clock Courage" have been held over.

Displaying his talents as a rider, Sunset Carson will be seen in the film, "Firebrands of Arizona," opening Thursday at the Lyric theatre. Smiley Burnette will add to the film by playing a dual role that of a dude cowboy and the other of a ruthless killer which almost helps him to get a hangman's noose about his neck.
