

New Romantic Comedy Stars Laraine Day, Robert Young

Laraine Day and Robert Young have the starring roles in the new romantic comedy, "Those Endearing Young Charms," opening Friday at the Ohio theatre, which tells of the consequences precipitated when a young man was naive enough to introduce his girl to his best friend. It all starts with this introduction. Hank Travers, played by Robert Young, who considers himself God's special gift to women, proceeds to exercise his well-known charms on Helen, played by Laraine Day, and her mother, Ann Harding. It's a film that will prove to be good film fare for all the family.

One chance in a million has been offered to film fans and has been gratefully received but now, as is the case with all good things, it must leave. "Tobacco Road" and "Grapes of Wrath" two films which were called back to the Quilna theatre by popular request, will bow out Thursday night as the film, "Nob Hill" starring Joan Bennett and George Raft comes in Friday to replace them.

A demand in all sense of the word sounds hard but when it concerns such things as the movies then it concerns the wants of the people. Thus you'll find the films "China Sky" and "Two O'Clock Courage" still playing at the Sigma theatre.

Imagine, Jack Benny, an angel! Well, maybe it's not too ridiculous, but you'll simply howl with laughter when you see him in the role of Athanasia in "The Horn Blows at Midnight," current attraction at the State theatre. When Benny is sent to earth to warn the people of doom, the suspense that is created will, in the language of today's youth, "send you" Sharning the billing is "Delightfully Dangerous," which stars Constance Moore and Ralph Bellamy.

It's not likely that the women of the United States would even touch a snake let alone kiss one—especially a Cobra. But in the film, "Dangerous Journey," now showing at the Lyric theatre, this is exactly what happens. The co-feature is "Firebrands of Arizona," with Sunset Carson and Smiley Burnette.

Edward Everett Horton Airs Guests On His Thursday Show

Jo Stafford, Pearl Bailey, and Elton Britt will be the trio of guest stars to join Edward Everett Horton on his new summer airshow for Music Hall on Thursday. The program which also features Les Tremayne and Raymond Paige's orchestra, is heard at 9 p. m. over WEAJ. "Special Hollywood," a drama that is considered among Arch Oboler's more popular works, has been scheduled for presentation on the "Arch Oboler Plays" broadcast of Thursday at 10 p. m. over WOR.

How paper is saving the lives of American soldiers will be told, when "Weapons for Victory," the Army Service Forces series, broadcast a drama built around part of the work of the psychological warfare branch of the Army, in the broadcast Thursday at 5 p. m. over WABC. Propaganda leaflets dropped behind enemy lines have proved a potent weapon in inducing the enemy to surrender, or in spreading dissension and friction in their ranks. Appearing as an interviewee on the program will be Capt. Horace Craig, formerly with the psychological warfare division of SHAEF.

Premature Baby To Have Birthday
PORTLAND, Ore., July 19 — (AP) — One-month-old Richard Allen Lee, weight 2 pounds 9 ounces, will have a "pre-natal" birthday party today—two months before the day he should have arrived.

At birth, Dickey weighed one pound, 9 ounces, and physicians gave him one chance in 1,000 of living more than three days. He was fed glucose formula thru leg veins at first, now receives milk by mouth tube and has graduated from an oxygen tent to an incubator.
