REVIEW OF YEAR IN SPORTS

Pro Football League Crowds Broke All Records in 1945

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — The National Football League, following the sellout trend of all major sports during 1945, announced today that its 10 teams played before 1,918,831 fans last season to break all existing attendance records for its 26-year history.

In averaging 28,836 spectators for 48 games, professional football took its place alongside major league baseball, collegiate football, horse racing, and golf in backing up the rosy prediction that a record attendance boom would follow World War II.

The boom came fast. The European War ended May 8 and V-J Day came Sept. 8. Once the United States was over the hump, fans wasted no time in streaming to their favorite sports arena.

New Cleveland Pro Eleven Proposes 1946 Tilt With Rams

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Owner Arthur McBride of the Cleveland Browns of the new All-America Professional Football League proposes that his team and the Cleveland Rams, National Pro League champions, meet in an exhibition game next fall.

"I think the fans will demand the game next fall," McBride said. "And I don't see how either team can duck it. After all, it's the public we have to please. Paul Brown (the team's coach) told me he's in favor of playing the Rams provided the game isn't scheduled until after we have a few games under our belts."

He said he had not issued an official challenge to the Rams.

General Manager Charles F. Walsh of the Rams, asked to comment on McBride's proposal, said: "I'm available 24 hours a day."

Joe Keenan Picks Coach-Stuhldreher

Joe Keenan, well-liked center on the University of Wisconsin football team, will return to Wisconsin to play more football at Harry Stuhldreher is still coaching out here when he (Keenan) gets out of the service.

That was Keenan's announcement Sunday in Shanghai, China, as he and a number of other football stars from the Midwest gathered round in an informal debate on the effect war time service has on young athletic stars, or the future of college and professional football.

Keenan, an ensign in the Navy, was one man of the group who knew what he wanted to do when he is able to return to college. He played freshman football at Notre Dame, varsity football at Wisconsin, and more Navy football at Iowa Pre-Flight and liked Stuhldreher's tutoring at Wisconsin the best. He figures he has three years of eligibility left.

Report Krall to Enrol Here

The University of Wisconsin's 1946 football squad may include a former Ohio State player it was learned during the weekend.

At his home in Toledo, Ohio, Jerry Krall, freshman left halfback on the 1945 Ohio State squad, announced that he was contemplating entering Wisconsin.

Krall, a former star at Libbey High school in Toledo and an All-Ohio state high school team choice in 1944, was second string left halfback on the 1945 Buckeye eleven as an understudy to Paul Sarringhaus but later gave way to Harold Daugherty when the latter gained a starting position.

Meanwhile, a second Ohio State player of last season, John Ehrnsam, former star at Waite high school in Toledo, stated that he would not return to Ohio State next semester. He was a second string quarterback. Ehrnsam declined to elaborate on his future plans.
