It was an invitation to go to the National Children's Cardiac home at Miami, Fla., which treats children with rheumatic fever. "It's the nicest valentine I've ever had," said 11-year-old Evelyn Valentine, who has received more than 32,000 valentines since she became ill.

Didn't Notice It Evelyn didn't notice this valentine at first. It was written on business stationery instead of red heart. But her mother, Mrs. Ruth Valentine, opened it and found it was a letter from Mrs. Stella Glass and Mrs. Ann Katzman, both of New York City.
They wrote in behalf of the National Children's Cardiac home

after reading a United Press dispatch about Evelyn. There was one stipulation to their offer, however. They said Evelyn could be accepted for free treatment only if she has the right type of rheumatic fever.

She'd Like to Play "I hope it's the right kind," Evelyn said. "I'd like to be where there's sunshine and children to play with." Evelyn's doctor won't let her play with other children. She has had almost no visitors since she suffered a relapse several months Mrs. Valentine said she was afraid the home might not acto the fever.

"But I'm not going to tell her," she said. "She's too happy about the invitation, and it's best to
