Union Pressure Loses Job for Penn Firm

For the first time in the fiveweek history of the Penn Electric dispute with the Madison Building Trades council, the electrical firm today was removed from a job it had started after pressure had been brought to bear on Les Emerson, proprietor of the Capitol Market, 1849 Monroe st., by the building trades council, Union carpenters employed by Orville Topp have been working this week with Penn on remodeling the market which Emerson noped to reopen Friday. Today, however. Emerson reported, someone informed the building trades council which in turn had the Carpenters and Joiners Local No. 314 call the carpenters off the iob. Emerson was faced with the alternative of retaining Fenn or trying to get another electrician: to keep the carpenters on the job and to enable him to get a union plumber to complete other necessary work, The union refused to allow its carpenters to work on the job if Penn were retained to complete their working hours were staggered.

"It's a matter of principle," Robert Strenger, business agent of the carpenters union said to-"We'd be defeating our purpose if we were to do any work at all if Penn is retained on the

the work, regardless of whether

Farm Bureau Supports Food Saving Plan

Support of food conservation and utilization programs was voiced in resolutions passed here Tuesday by the board of directors of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation and sent to Secretary federation and sent to Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, the Wisconsin congressional delegation, and Chester Davis, chairman of the famine emergency committee. The resolutions:

Endorsed Anderson's policy of the control of the famine emergency committee. The resolutions:

Endorsed Anderson's policy of the famine emergency committee. The resolutions:

Endorsed Anderson's policy of the family for t Endorsed Anderson's policy of making more grain foods available for humans by reducing the amount of grain fed to animals. Recommended nationwide culling of beef, dairy, and poultry herds and flocks to eliminate insufficient producers. The culling of a single animal from each of the nation's 3,000,000 dairy herds alone would greatly reduce the number of animals to be fed and at the same time increase the supply of edible meat, the board pointed out.
