

Disobeying Yanks, First to Meet Russ, Revealed

By WILLIAM J. FOX
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK (AP)—A year ago three patrols of the American First Army disobeyed an order and paraded into the now-famous linkup with the Red army on the Elbe river in Germany.

On Apr. 25, 1945, I was a member of one of those patrols which met the Russians and made history.

But the Russian and American armies did not first meet at Torgau on the Elbe as has been so widely reported.

The first contact came at Leckwitz at 11:30 a. m. when the group with First Lieut. Albert L. Kotzbeue, of Houston, Tex., met a lone Russian horseman.

Chose to Ignore Orders
The third came 45 minutes later at Clanzschwitz when the group commanded by Maj. Fred W. Graig, of Friendship, Tenn., encountered a troop of Red cavalrymen. I was in Craig's patrol.

The night before when we were briefed, we knew these would be no ordinary patrols. The orders were specific: To try to find the Russians, but we were not to go beyond 3 to 5 miles of our lines.

The orders had come from very high up. They involved high political considerations.

We chose to ignore them. It was a cold, foggy morning when we shoved off across the Melde river at Trebsen.

We took towns in many cases, by making a reconnaissance on foot and then driving straight down the main street to the central square.

Included in our group was Donald Champey of Milwaukee. We had just cleared Clanzschwitz when, suddenly, the lead vehicle ground to a stop. Off to the right was a group of horsemen. Everyone gasped: "Russians."

We mingled in a milling mass of grinning, cussing, back-slapping guys. "Amerikaner!" and "Tovarich!" we yelled in the only Russian we knew, while they pointed to themselves and said: "Russki!"

The Brass Give O. K.
There was consternation back in our lines, when the news reached there by radio.

It was a tossup whether we were heroes or villains.

"My first inclination," Maj. Gen. Edwin F. Reinhart, commander of the 68th Infantry division, told me later, "was to court-martial the whole crowd."

But, after the damage was done, everyone relented.

"That's the way it goes," Reinhart said. "If things go well, you get decorated; if they go wrong, you get court-martialed."

Ex-First Lady's Gown, Slippers Net $100
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—(AP)—An evening gown and a pair of slippers owned by Mrs. Grace Coolidge, widow of the former president, brought only $100 at a public auction for a church benefit Friday night.

Even Mrs. Coolidge's explanation that the dirt on the fringe of the gown was "White House dust" failed to bring a higher bid from the 500 persons attending the benefit and the articles went to William D. Meisser, Mineola, N. Y. Meisser submitted his bid by mail.

Victory Garden City on Saturday
Victory gardeners on the lookout for good gardening tips before the season gets too far under way will have an opportunity to see the nation's first "victory garden" train when it rolls into Madison Saturday on the North Western line.

The train, sponsored by the North Western railroad and the National Garden Institute, will consist of four railroad cars with exhibits to encourage home gardeners to continue raising food this season.

The use and misuse of DDT, the miracle bug killer, and explanation of the new chemical, 2-4-D, will be explained by expert horticulturists and chemists.

Appearance in Madison will be from 2 to 5 p. m. Saturday. The train is touring six midwestern states, ending the schedule at Madison.

Girl, 16, Kills Self After Father's Rebuke
VENICE, Calif.—(AP)—Har father's rebuke for playing hockey was blamed today for the suicide of Pauline Meeks, 16-year-old high school student.

Pauline swallowed two-thirds of a bottle of sleeping tablets shortly after her father came home unexpectedly Friday and found her with two friends, Cleve Johnson, and Shirley Lee.

Cleve and Shirley told police that Meeks did not believe Pauline was sick and told her not to have guests until she had finished her chores.

They said he threatened, "I'll take care of you tonight."

Pauline went to the bathroom and swallowed the tablets. She died en route to a hospital.
