Clothes, Not Rivets, Lure Ex-War Workers

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Rosie the Riveter is almost a thing of the past in California, the state department of industrial relations revealed.
During peak war-time years more than 100,000 women worked in airplane factories and nearly 41,000 in shipyards.
Today, only 300 women are employed in ship-building and fewer than 8,400 in aircraft factories, the department said.
