For One Day at Least

NO TABLE GROANS UNDER MEAT YET TODAY.

The Russians still screech, "Veto!" The Milwaukee railroad spikes hold fast.

And hundreds still find no home.

Henry Wallace loses his hammer if not his sickle. The maritime strike is settled. The decontrol board gets some final if temporary sense about dairy prices.

AND the Badgers are back at Camp Randall.

They don't balance off, those two sides of the ledger, but it may be a good if slightly ridiculous part of human nature that it can recognize and grasp for refuge in the littler things for surcease and even ephemeral delight. Anyway, it is a great good thing that market has been made. To be sure, a depression in 1947 and 1948 would make the Republicans happy. No major political change has ever occurred without a depression as a forerunner, as statistician Louis Bean has shown in his detailed analysis of political trends.

While there may have been some political influence on the market, that is too simple and too easy an explanation. But why should the influence on the market, that is too simple and too easy an explanation. But why should the barometer of the stock market fall so abruptly when nearly 60,000,000 Americans are employed and when production is at a high level? The answer, it seems to me, is not hard to said.

Aware of Power

IT LIES IN SOARING PRICES. THE average consumer finds it difficult or impossible to catch up with these prices with the money in his wage envelope. The stockmarket break heralded the end of the boom-time phase when things were snatched off counters and out of show windows as soon as they appeared. Even with a reserve in war bonds and savings, the average family is here.
