This year is the first since the war when transient room rentals and food prices have no ceilings. All notels and restaurants planned to up the food prices considerably and some said they'd reversity and some said they'd report to the pre-war trend when a Derby-woer poid 25 cents for a cup of coffee. The price of drinks at the bar was increased at some dispensaries, while others said they cost enough now and Derby guests would pay no more.

The mint julep, a Derby traditive will cost $1.25 instead of $1 as ouring the war years.
