McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority.

Bridge hand diagram showing cards in each hand and a score table.

With the exception of tennis I know of no game that runs truer to form than bridge. However, a darkhorse comes through occasionally.

Dr. Robert A. Steiff of Rockville, Ind., and Ewell O'Brien of Terre Haute, Ind., were darkhorse winners of the All American open pair championship at French Lick, Ind., last fall.

In today's hand Staff (North) and O'Brien (South) were using the Gerber four club convention, and O'Brien's fur club bid asked his partner for spades. With no ace the response would be four diamonds; one ace, four hearts; two aces, four spades. South's four no trump asked for kings. Five clubs would have denied holding any kings. North, with two kings, bid five hearts.

South decided to sign off with the bid of five spades, but North felt that if his partner held enough to be looking for a slam, he certainly had the makings of one, so he put South in six.

O'Brien made the hand by a triple squeeze. After the opening lead of the ace of hearts, West shifted to the eight of spades. East went up with queen, declarer won with the ace and cashed the jack.

South then proceeded to get himself down to the nine of spades, jack of hearts and seven of diamonds. West was left with the jack and four of diamonds and nine of clubs. Dummy held the ace and nine of diamonds and three of clubs. While East had the queen of hearts and queen-ten of diamonds.

O'Brien led the last spade. West could not throw away the nine of clubs or dummy's three-spot would become a ruff. When he let go a diamond, declarer discarded the club from dummy, and East was squeezed. He had to hold the queen of hearts or O'Brien's jack would be good. When he let go a diamond, O'Brien won the last two tricks with the ace and nine of diamonds in dummy.

This hand also produces a very interesting cross-ruff.

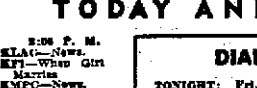

REG'LAR FELLERS

I WONDER WHY TH' GOV'N'T DOESN'T GRANT A COUPLE HUNNERTS OF THOSE PELICANS!

WELL, THEY'VE TRAINED FISSONS TO CAREY MESSAGES.

WHY COULDN'T THEY TRAIN THOSE SHE-MOUTHED BARBES TO CAREY PARCEL POST!

By Gene Byrnes

No. Each sex is superior in some respects and inferior in others. Women are superior in learning languages, in social intelligence and acting ability. Men are superior in mathematics, domination, and desire to run the world—which they do in the main. They are about equal in mechanical ability. Women have greater biological vitality and strength, as they live nearly two years longer on the average. Men are superior in muscular strength, chiefly because many times more males than females die before birth and in childhood, and only the strong survive. Men are, by all odds, the weaker sex.

Answer to Question No. 1

Yes. Our highest authority Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, has measured thousands of heads of both the older and younger generations and says we are developing a distinctly American face and head, that is as different from a British, German, Scandinavian or Italian head as they are different from each other.

Answer to Question No. 2

Yes. But he can find out by studying E. L. Thorndike's book, "Your City." He takes 37 items as an index of general goodness such as infant death rate per capita, poverty per capita, money for schools, libraries, parks, etc.—number of lawyers, preachers, doctors, drug stores, churches, cigar stores, saloons, pool rooms, etc.

Answer to Question No. 3

Joseph Stalin must be deriving considerable d's m a y from the reports from Brussels of the progress of five western European nations toward an economic union which would incorporate pledges of mutual defense. It is a small beginning, but just possibly the effort could blossom into a coalition of such tough fiber and economic strength as Europe has never known.—San Francisco Chronicle.
