Schellenberg and Harry J. Fish-bein, who run the Mayfair Bridge Club in New York, put on a game from which all en-trance is a given to the March of Dimes. I played with Nick Minuskin, chairman of bridge tournaments for the March of Dimes. Nick and I had won the tournament. Todays hand came up. On the opening lead of the diamond three, Nick played iow from the bidding that the ace of dia-monds would be a give-up play, put on the jack. Nick won with the queen, cashed the king of clubs and led a small heart over-to the king.

clubs and led a small heart over to the king. Now the average player might make the mistake of leading the ace of clubs and discarding the five of spades. But there is a chance to make seven on this hand and it always can be played safely for six. Nick made the correct play of the seven of clubs, trumping in his own hand with a small heart. Then he laid down the ace of hearts, ploking up East's tack. He went over to dummy with the ten of hearts and ruffed an-other club. The six of hearts was overtaken by' the seven in d u m my, and now the ace of clube was laid down. When the jack dropped from the East hand, Nick discarded the six of diamonds. The ten of spades was discarded on dummy's fifth club, then the queen of spades was also. East refused to cover, declarer let it ride and thus made seven. made seven.
