Absent - Mindedness Hospitalizes Lana

LANA TURNÉR

Recently Cinema Star Lana Turner was hospitalized with a badly injured arm. Most reports gave no details of the mishap. Today Edith Gwynn tells how the accident happened.

Dvorak did a musically honest job in transferring the original arrangement to the field of the concert band. The Russian com-poser wrote it for piano, string orchestra, and trumpet. Dvorak, the program notes said, made no attempt "to imitate the original ...but rather the band arrange-ment was made with the thought of capitalizing on that material which lends itself best to the possibility of band instrumenta-tion." In this, he was both wise and successful. There was a sonority to the background lacking in most band transcriptions of orebestra.

RADIO ROUNDUP: The Dick On the Campus

By EDITH GWYNN HOLLYWOOD — Here's the story behind that badly bangedup arm of Lana Turner's with which she was hospitalized. Gene Kelly and director George Sidney were kidding around on the set, flinging her about in a sort of adagio dance. Kelly tossed Lana at George who ab-sentmindedly (?) walked away!

Couldn't have picked a worse moment for a stroll! Hard to believe, but Mono-gram's "Bringing Up Father" based on the comic strip, has been banned by Ireland's censors who claim it ridicules the Irish and shows them as being only interested in corned-beef and cabbage,

The skiing accident just suf-fered by Lucien Ballard in Switzerland, sure puts a crimp in Merle Oberon's plans to visit India next month. Now her spouse must be hospitalized among the Tonight's Aces

The program opened with Leo uity. It will come over CBS at Organizations Soverby's "Spring" overture, which struck this department as protracted display of Sower-by's interest in writing for band Richard Carroll, Sowerby's rather than as music. Perhaps the fact that the cornets and clarinets got off to a slow start accounted for some of this.

two movements of Shostakovitch's fifth symphony-whose humorous second movement it played particularly well.

Outside of the concerto, the high point of the concert was the entr'acte from Tanelev's "Orestes," in which the bandsmen proved their ability at maintaining sustained tones without wavering; here the flutes shown. Philip James' "E. F. G." overture, based on the initials and rhythm of Edwin Franko Gold-man's name, was an ingratiating piece with which to close the first half. Besides the concerto, the second part consisted of Wil liam Grant Still's vitally original "From the Delta" and Dvorak's "Wisconsin Centennial March," plus a couple of marches for encores and a group of Wisconsin songs.

COMING: The Northland college choir of Ashland will sing Monday, Apr. 5, in the First Congregational church.

GOING: The University of Wisconsin Symphony orchestra and the University chorus have Milwaukee dates. The orchestra, under Prof. Richard C. Church, will play in the Pabst theater Apr. 10 with Violinist Gunnar Saevig as soloist and the chorus, under Prof. Paul G. Jones, will sing in the same house Apr. 30.

ART: Helene Stratman-Thomas was one Madisonian fortunate enough to see the exhibition of "Masterpieces of French Tapestry" which opened Thursday in the Art Institute of Chicago. She tells us that the tapestries are "beyond description" and that seeing them is "truly a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity." The exhibition occupies the en tire second floor of the Art institute-all pictures were removed to make the showing possible. The tapestries will be on display through May 5, with gallery tours at 2 p. m. Sundays and Tuesdays; at 3:30 p. m. Mondays and Saturdays, and at 11 a. m. Wednesdays Fridays, and Saturdays. There is a small charge for admission to the exhibitions and another small fee for the tour.

Recommended They retrieved their prestige, however, in the second work-

Vladimir Horowitz: "Piano Music of Chopin and Liszt" Music of Chopin and Liszt (Victor) . . . Brilliant per-formance and good recording. The Chopin "Ballade in G Minor" and Liszt "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6" are tops. Other selections are "Noc-turne in F Sharp," Chopin, and "Au Bord d'une Source." and "Au Bord d'une Source,"

Liszt. London Philharmonic: "Le overture, Berlioz Corsair" (Victor) ... Sir Thomas Bee-cham again brings up a rarely-heard Berloiz number, and does wonders with it. It comes up with dazzling sound and stays up. Royal Philharmonic orchestra, Luton choir, and Betty Beecham, planist: Music by Delius (Victor) . . . This new "Delius Society Set" consists "Marche Caprice," and "A Song of the High Hills." Sir Thomas Beecham conducts. The piano performance is competent, if not brilliant, the recording is topnotch, and the orchestral part is nicely balanced against the solo instrument. "High Hills" is de-scribed by Jerome Bohm as "a meandering, sensuous day-dream in which the voices are employed merely to fertilize the lush instrumental texture to the stage of overripeness." Recording, again, is excellent. "Marche Caprice" is charming.
