It often tells a lot. St. Louis psychologist H. Meltzer has found it reveals much of a child's feeling toward its parents by asking it to "think out loud" when he says "father" and "mother". The replies indicate whether the child is repressed or fears or loves its parents. This is called the World Associa-This is called the Word-Associa-

Answer To Question No. 3

Yes. We had a preacher when I was a boy whose sermons always put me to sleep, but I woke up the moment he stopped, won-dering what the noise was. We sleep for hours on a train and do not notice the noise until it comes to a sudden stop—then the silence sounds deafening. Many a man claims when his wife stops talking—but perhaps it is safer to change the subject.

For today's lesson hand we have a hand that came up in the recent Eastern States tournament in New York. Peter Leventritt was the only player in the room to make the contract of

The play involved is a safety which I think has appeared in every book written on the play of the hand.

The question is how to play the spade suit. Declarer has to lose one club and one diamond, and he must avoid losing more than one spade. The correct play is to lead a small spade from dummy and go up with the king, then lead a small spade back toward the ace. If East plays low, declarer must put on the seven-spot from dummy. If East covers with the nine, declarer wins with the ace. With this play East can make only one Every expert admits that this is the way the hand must be played at rubber bridge, because there the contract is the impor-tant thing. A discussion arose, however, about this play in tour-nament bridge, in which you have to play for the maximum number of tricks. Therefore some of the experts think that in tournament play you should try to pick up the whole spade suit, and that the only way to do that is to lead the acc of spades and then finesse the jack.

I do not go along with this theory because in my opinion bidding and making four spades on this hand is bound to produce. score above average. Therefore I think tournament players as well as rubber bridge players should make the safety play on ... PATENT OFFICE PRIVATI
