Answer to Question No. 2

By Gene Byrnes Wou can't tell any one indi-vidual, but Psychologists Schul-man and Havighurst tested all the high school freshmen and sophomores and all other chil-dren born in 1932 in a midwest-or town on vocabulary and from horn in 1952 in a hiddest ern town on vocabulary and found those from parents in the higher jobs and social positions averaged better on vocabularies, but with many exceptions. The child with the best vocabulary was from part to the lowest so is from next to the lowest social class.

Answer to Question No. 3 Answer to question No. 3 Not when two foolish drivers are plunging head on into each other. But genuine spiritual prayer would give millions of drivers (and doubtless does give some) the peace of mind and composures of body and nerves that would make them safer drivers. A national campaign for praying auto drivers would be a wonderful safety measure. be a wonderful safety measure. At least, I'd rather drive with them than with you.

ON BRIDGE Carnival By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

It is difficult to convince people that bridge in Indianapolis, Ind., is different from bridge in any other place in the country, Even the cards run differently in Indianapolis, and Joseph E. Cain, Edson T. Wood and Walter Pray of that city will tell you that they have to make fancy bids.

I recently talked with Mrs. Reba Buck, secretary of the Indianapolis Bridge Association, and she gave me today's hand. How could the hand be played at two clubs doubled? Why didn't East bid four spades? Those are unanswerable questions. But Mrs. Buck played it at two clubs, and she played it well.

Weil. For some reason East's open-ing lead was the ace of dia-monds. Perhaps he wanted a ruff, but forgot that he had no trumps to ruff with. Next he cashed the ace of hearts, which did not make Mrs. Buck feel badly at all. Then East cashed the king of spades, and when his partner played the jack, the ace of spades followed. Mrs. Buck trumped this with the deuce of clubs, then led a small club. Finding East out of clubs, she went up with the ace in dum. went up with the ace in dum-my, led a small diamond and trumped it with the four of
