Answer to Question No. 1
Purdue Psychologist H. H.
Remmers found, by scientific methods, a large majority of school children think their teachers "fair," "cheerful," "not faultfinding," "humorous at times," "kind," etc. A good many said their "best-liked" teacher was "pretty"—a fortunate finding because children won't learn much if they dislike their teachers.

But with most people the effort to live such an even, undisturbed life would produce a good deal of boredom.

FIRST, make it clear you don't want to be President. If you are a general, rule out generals as presidential desirables. Reas presidental desirables. Republican nomination. Let the Democrats know you're not their man. Discourage every attempt to boom you. Be firm, dignified, unambiguous and scrupulous in re-fusing to be drawn into poll-tics. Be adamant. Be a college president. Keep in the background.

Then, if all goes well, you may refers.
