Cagney's Retiring Just Talk; He's Planning 2 Big Films in '48

By EDITH GWYNN
HOLLYWOOD — We had a hunch at the time there was much talk of Jimmy Cagney's "retiring" — to rest and travel for at least a year now that his "Time of Your Life" is completed and in the theatres—that it was just talk.
 So we're not surprised to learn that Cagney is going right ahead with plans to produce two very big pictures during the coming year. The first will be "Lion in the Streets" the novel depicting Huey Long for which he paid a fabulous price, and the second, "Only the Valiant."
 Bob Hope, reported elsewhere as having had a spinal operation last week, never had anything worse than a cold in his back. He was home for two days but is now at work in "Sorrowful Jones" again.
 Actor Barry Sullivan's deal to acquire the film rights to the Jack Dempsey life story for an independent production, is so close to signing that their lawyers are already talking long-distance and getting releases from people mentioned in the story.
 Teddy Krise, the Warner musician has the gendarmes buying dictionaries. He reported the theft of a $50 octavino. Now all the cops have to do is find out what an octavino is.
 When Alan Ladd goes into business for himself, he really pitches to stardom by losing that role in "Forever Amber" has "lost" another part—the role that Gene Tierney was to play in "The Fan" before her impending blessed-event took her out of that star-studded picture.
 Jean Crain gets the Tierney role that Peg wanted but maybe the whole thing will be lucky for her again. She'll be starred in a comedy-romance, "The Guy Pur-suit" instead.
 20th Century Fox is crazy about the Cummings gal since her success in "Green Grass of Wyoming" and the recently finished "Escape" which she made in England with Rex Harrison.
