Answers to Modest Maidens Questions

- By HASKINS
- A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing: The Lane News Service, 1100 Washington St., D. C. Five-cent stamps for return postage.
- Q. Who is the author of the saying "The marines have landed and have the situation well in hand"? P.B.A.
- A. The authorship is disputed. The saying is credited to Richard Harding Davis, war correspondent, who used it in a newspaper article following the landing of U. S. Marines in Guantánamo Bay, Cuba, in 1898.
- Q. Is there a mace in the U. S. Senate like the one in the House of Representatives? Where is it kept? H.R.G.
- A. Only in the House of Representatives is there a mace. It has no counterpart in the Senate. The mace remains in position on a pedestal at the Speaker's right as long as the House is in session, but it removed to a lower pedestal when the House resolves itself into a Committee of the Whole. Any member can, therefore, tell at a glance whether the House is in session or in committee.
- Q. How fast can Army pigeons fly? M.C.
- A. During World War II great advances were made and now speeds of more than 70 miles an hour and flights of 500 miles a day can be made.
- Q. Has the Medal of Honor ever been awarded to a woman? L. C.
- A. Dr. Mary Walker, an Army surgeon in the Civil War, is believed to have been the first and only woman to receive the Army Medal of Honor. A photograph of Dr. Walker by Mathews B. Brady shows her in a sort of uniform with the long trousers she always wore showing beneath her skirt. The medal is pinned to her left shoulder.
- Q. Is the base of the Great Pyramid in Egypt a perfect square? K. D.
- A. The sides of the pyramid are equal in length to within six-sixths of an inch. This is a remarkable achievement and demonstrates the fact that the ancient Egyptians were outstanding in the mastery of measurements.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

Until 1934 I was a native of Cleveland, Ohio. For that reason I may be a little biased, but I have always felt that Cleveland produced some of the greatest card players of all time. At the Ohio State tournament this year I was happy to see Carl Apher and Henry Jaeger, two former teammates of mine and two really great card players.

We were discussing the famous Western Reserve team, who won the Ohio State team-of-four title this year. The team consisted of Elmer J. Babin, Sidney Fink, A. S. Goldsmith and O. S. Emrich of Cleveland, and Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia. Today's lesson hand is the result of our discussion.

You can see that the declarer has to lose two diamonds and the ace of hearts quickly. He cannot afford to lose any spades. Everybody agreed that he should play the ace of spades at once. Now should he play the jack of spades from dummy, hoping to find the ten and one on the left?

Emrich, who played this hand, advanced the theory that the best percentage play is to bang down the ace and king of spades. This protects the declarer against a spade loser if the queen and one are doubleton on the left or the right. The only time he will win by leading the jack on the second round of spades is when the ten and one are on the left.

This is a neat safety play that can be missed by good, careful players.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

THE argument that an attempt to improve the United Nations, if unsuccessful, will do more harm than good, is the worst condemnation of its usefulness that I have heard.

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

It says in a Moscow publication that one Lomonosov discovered the electrical nature of lightning just before our Ben Franklin did—a retroactive coincidence if ever we saw one.

But wouldn't extending the human life span to 150 years, as science promises, be carrying the mother-in-law joke too far?

For the early-morning performer, radio has it all over television, as who knows of cares if he shows up for work in yesterday's face.

With rocket fighters exceeding the speed of sound, we suppose the older jobs, that lumber along at 600 m. p. h., will still do for an occasional change of pace.
