Do you become a little bit dis-couraged when you misplay a hand? You shouldn't, because misplays can improve your game. Remember too that the experts blow many a hand. When today's hand was played, four of the country's greatest card play-ers were at the table, and at least eight Life Masters were kibitiz-ing. When an expert misplays a ing. When an expert misplays a hand, the others are quick to tell him about it, but not one of them noticed that this contract could have been made.

Do you become a little bit dis-have been made. East wins the opening lead of the deuce of spades with the ace and returns the queen of clubs. The correct play is not to win this club trick with the ace, but to let the queen hold. When East continues with the three of clubs, South should win with the ace, which will drop the king. Now declarer leads the ten of clubs, West discards a diamond, East wins with the jack and leads a small spade which declarer trumps with the five of hearts. Now South leads the nine of clubs, and if West makes the mistake of trumping, South will over-trump in dummy, pick up the trumps and make his con-tract. If West refuses to trump, declarer goes down one trick, los ing two clubs, a spade and the ing two clubs, a spade and the long heart. Later in the evening, one of the experts who had been think-ing about the hand, told South how he could have made it. In-stead of leading the ten of clubs at trick four and letting East win it with the jack, he should have led a small heart to dummy, led the queen of spades and discarded the nine of clubs from his own hand. West would have won with the king of spades, but he could not return a club. De-clarer would win either a heart or diamond return in dummy, lead the ten of spades and dis-card the ten of clubs. Then he could pick up West's four the trumps and make the contract. It is true that if declarer had won the queen of clubs with the ace at trick two ond then picked up the trumps, he could have made the hand. But this would not have been the correct per-centage play because it would work only when the clubs are divided king and one.

OF YOUR FRIENDS HAVE TELEPHONES Lean ever before

> In the 82 Southern California communities we serve, each new issue of the telephone directory lists an increased number of subscribers.

> This should interest you as a telephone user; for every time a new telephone is installed in your community, your own telephone becomes more useful.

> With the completion of our huge 25 million dollar expansion program (now well under way) the number of your friends with telephones will be still further increased. We are looking forward to the day when with sufficient added facilities in operation we shall at last be able to provide service for the thousands of families who have been patiently waiting for many months to have their telephones installed.
