Today's hand is from my for-mer associate, Col. Russell J. Baldwin, tournament manager of the American Contract Bridge of the American Contract Bridge League, II is his name that is associated with mine in the Mc Kenney-Baldwin move ments which are used in tournaments throughout the country. During the war, Baldwin's mathematical ability was employed by the gov-enment in ballistics. Although Baldwin seldom plays bridge, he is an outstand-ing card player. He figures every play with mathematical precision, as he did in today's hand. i North's bid of two spades precision, as he did in today's hand. North's bid of two spades over two bearts was an ace-showing bid, and did not neces-sarily show a spade suit. Baldwin won the opening lead of the queen of clubs with the ace. Then he took three rounds of trumps, and when East dis-carded the kins of clubs on the last round of diamonds, Baldwin had a clear picture of the hand. He knew that East had held only two diamonds, and he felt sure that he had only two clubs. That left him with five and four in the major suits. At this point Baldwin cashed the ace, king and queen of hearts, discarding two clubs from dummy, then he led the snail club, which West won with the tenspot. East was squeezed and let go a spade. West's best defense at his point was to give declarer a sluff and a ruff, so he continued with a club. Baldwin trumped in dummy, and East let go a heart, Declarer also let go a heart, then led a spade from dummy to the king and laid down the last diamond. Once a gain East was squeezed. If he let go a heart, Baldwin's last heart would be good. If he let go a spade, Bald-win would lead the jack of spades, overtake in dummy with the ace, dropping the queen, and the ten would be good for the last trick. At trick No. 4 Baldwin had correctly read East's distribu-tion and knew that from then on, East was going to be squeezed.

ground. Q. By whom was the Turkish, bath given this name? C. N. C. A. In the Middle Ages the Turks believed in taking regular hot-air baths as an important part of the Moslem religion. The name Turkish bath is said to have been introduced into the English language by David Ur-guhart (1865-77) who was at-tached to the British Embassy at Constantinople, now Istanbul.

Q. In what battle did the sol-diers sing the hymn. "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," while they were fighting? N. V. A. This happened in the battle of Lutzen in 1632, when Gustas-us Adolphus faced Wallenstein. The northern atmics went into battle singing the hymn and did so throughout the day.

Q. What English queen never lived in English queen never lived in England? C. J. A. Eerengaria, the wife of Richard 1, the Lionthearted, never set foot in England. Richard joined in a crusade to the Holy Land and on the way home was seized and imprisoned. ple select mates more intelli-gently and also know better how to salve life's problems. Fos-sibly non-college graduates, of equal intelligence, do as well. Answer to Question No. 2

Answer to Question No. 2 I'd rather let the pupils an-swer. Under Principal Sigmund Folger of School No. 233, Brook-lyn. N. Y., the Student Council drew up a constitution which states (abridged); "If a class is disorderly, every member of the class present shall receive the same punishment as if the dis-order had been an individual offense." All children should be made to feel they are partly re-sponsible for each other's char-acter and behavior. Answer to Question No. 3
