SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Recalling a Congress and handing the majority its own party platform to enact forthwith is most irregular, as it may take years just to interpret a cryptic document of this kind.

He confusion is the aim, a war scare couldn't come at a nicer time, fust as we finished beat.

Candidate for U. S. Senator from Maine on the Democratic ticket is a Portland plastic surgeon—and a good thing, too, if any face-saving is in order.

Answer to Question No. 2

No, not very clearly. I receive about 20 inquiries from readers for a "psychiatrist" to one for a "psychologist." A psychiatrist must be a physician and theoretically have a profound knowledge of abnormal psychology and behavior. With some "psychiatrists" (2) the latter is only a theory, since any doctor can call himself a "psychiatrist." Consult your city medical society for a psychiatrist, your nearest college for a psychologist.

Fairly so, but they are purposeful exaggerations of harmless racial and national flavors.

customs and tendencies The delightful thing is the best Jewish jokes are told by Jews, the best Irish and Scotch jokes by Irishmen and Scotchmen, etc. When Ogden Nash says "No McTavish was ever lavish" the loudest laugh comes from the MacTavishes. Jokes told this way break down prejudices and hatred.

THE MOST important lesson to

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
THE MOST important lesson to be learned in bridge is to count your tricks. In today's hand East gets into the right contract. Six spades could be defeated easily, but with the diamond opening, the six-heart contract is assured if the declarer counts his tricks.

He can count five spade tricks, three heart tricks, a diamond and a club—10 tricks in all. If the spades are divided 3-3, he can throw one of his clubs away on a spade and ruff a club.
That will give him 11 tricks, and he still will have three trumps to pick up the trump suit. This means that he will have to use some of dummy's trumps to ruff a couple of diamonds. Now he has 12 tricks counted and all he has to do is to he sure that the timing is right.

The opening lead of the diamond king is trumped in dummy with the four of hearts.
The eight of hearts is played and overtaken with the ten-spot.
If South takes this trick, declarer has no problem. But suppose that he ducks it. Then East must ruff another diamond in dummy. He must not cash the ace of diamonds at this point.

Next the jack of hearts is led from dummy and overtaken with the queen. South might as well take this with the ace, and his best play is to lead back the king of clubs.

This is won in dummy, a spade is led to the king, the trumps are picked up, the ace of diamonds cashed, and now East goes over to dummy with the five of spades. On dummy's three good spades East discards his club and two diamonds, and the seven of hearts is available to ruff dummy's club.
