Video No Worry To Benny! Oh, No?

(Editor's Note: Will Rogers is dead, Fred Allen is ailing with a bronchial cold and Jack Benny is somewhat of a hypochondriac. Result: Jack Benny is the most logical comedian to write about television.)

By JACK BENNY

It seems that every radio comedian I bump into these days is worried sick about television. What will it be like? How will it affect them? What will be the reaction of the public when it can see as well as hear these comedians?

For the actor it means learning a new medium, mastering a different technique. No more reading from scripts—every line must be memorized. The sudden transition will not be easy.

We few who won't be affected by television can't help but notice the fear in the faces of those less fortunate actors. It's like a Frankenstein monster that haunts them until they can't see or think straight.

Recently I had lunch with Eddie Cantor, a case in point. He spoke about Ida, his five daughters, the new picture he's producing, a play he has coming up on Broadway. He told me a few stories (which I had already heard from Jessel) and raved about some song he was doing next week on the air. But not once did he mention what was uppermost in his mind—television.

Cantor is always acting, but he couldn't fool me. I knew that underneath his apparent gaiety—the handclapping, the eye rolling, the jumping up and down—he was trying to find escape, escape from the morbid fear that was sapping his strength and confidence.

Of course, with me it's different. But I couldn't help wondering how I would feel if I were in poor Eddie's spot.

As we left the restaurant I tried to cheer him up. I shook hands with him and said 'Don't worry, Eddie.'

He said, 'Worry about what?' Pathetically he pretended he didn't know what I was talking about. And as the chauffeur opened the door and little Eddie stepped into his big Cadillac I knew that during that long drive to his 40-room home in Beverly Hills the one thing in his mind was that terrible dread of television.

Burns And Allen, Too

Then there are Burns and Allen. I played golf with George Burns and he pulled the same act as Cantor. He made out that he didn't have a worry in the world. He purposely played a better game of golf than I did just so I wouldn't see how upset he was.

On the way back to the clubhouse he kept laughing and telling me the same jokes Cantor told me (which I had already heard from Jessel) and all the while I knew his nerves were at the breaking point that the specter of television gnawed at every fibre of his being. I kept thinking how fortunate I was that I wasn't in the same position. Poor George and Eddie and Bob Hope, too!

I met Hope the other day and he was carrying on worse than Burns and Cantor. Naturally Bob is younger. He's just getting his break and television will hit him harder than the others. There he was standing in the lobby surrounded by a crowd of GIs signing autographs and cracking the same jokes that George Burns told me that Cantor told me (which I already heard from Jessel).

And when Bob called out 'Hello Jack. I'll be with you in a second,' I knew immediately from the timbre of his voice that television was making a nervous wreck out of him, too.

But I've got to hand it to Hope. In spite of the heartbreak, the fear inside of him, not once did he let down and allow his actions to betray his real feelings. He was brash and breezy, eyes sparkling, full of pep but when I inadvertently mentioned what television would do to some radio comedians that got him:

His reaction was instantaneous. His face sobered. His manner softened. He put his arm around my shoulder and for a brief moment I thought I saw a tear in his eye. At that instant I hated myself for having let these words slip out. How it must have hurt the boy!

He said, 'Buck up, Jack. It'll work out somehow. Poor Bob!' He didn't want me to worry about him.

Poor Mr Allen!

Then I got to thinking about the others. Fred Allen, for instance. What must he going on in his mind? In spite of what everybody thinks about Allen, we must admit he is intelligent. He realizes what television will mean to him. He shaves every morning. He knows what he looks like.

I tuned in on his program accidentally recently and it was pitiful. He told the same jokes that Bob Hope told, those GIs that George Burns told me after Cantor told me (which I had already heard from Jessel). I never felt so embarrassed for anybody in my life. The only thing that saved Allen's program was the audience. They were so sorry for him they laughed continuously all through the show.

You can't fool the American public. The people know television is just around the corner and it was just their way of saying 'So long, Fred. You did a great job.'

Last night I couldn't sleep. Every time I closed my eyes I saw poor little Eddie Cantor, Burns and Allen, Bob Hope, Fred Allen and all those other radio comedians less fortunate than I. It was a never ending parade. Fibber McGee and Molly, Edgar Bergen, Red Skelton, Jack Carson, the Great Gildersleeve—all potential victims of television.

And as I lay there wide awake in bed I knew what they were going through—sleepless nights tossing and turning, wondering what the future held in store for them. The uncertainty—the agony of waiting. The feeling of complete helplessness, as moving ever closer, television crept to engulf them and relegate them to the past.

3 AREA MIDSHIPMEN ON AIRCRAFT CARRIER

Three area midshipmen, two from Stratford and one from Fairfield are taking part in a two month Naval Reserve Officers training cruise in the Pacific aboard the aircraft carrier U S S Boxer.

The Stratford men are William F Westlin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Westlin, 409 Allyndale drive and James B. Fitch Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Fitch, 165 Huntington road. The third area resident is Philip Joseph Lamoureaux Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Joseph Lamoureaux, 239 North Pine Creek road, Fairfield.

The midshipmen are scheduled to return to San Francisco Aug. 21 and then to the colleges and universities from which they came.

FOR SAILORS

Ready-made clothing probably was invented to meet the needs of sailors returning from long voyages and requiring new wardrobes at short notice, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

CONCERT POSTPONED

Threatening weather caused postponement of the Marine band concert scheduled to take place yesterday afternoon in Seaside park. The program will be performed Aug. 29 under the direction of Luigino Cappucci.

The VFW band will present a concert next Sunday in Beardsley park. This summer series of musical programs are sponsored jointly by the City of Bridgeport and local 63, American Federation of Musicians.
