By WILLAM E. MCKENNEY

In the June Issue of The Bridge World, there was an interesting article by Ivy Oeschger. teresting article by IVy Oesenger, of. San Mateo, Calif., with the catching title, "A Thinkin' and A Countin'." Mias Oesenger is a good writer. She and Maureen Bailey, of San Francisco, colleb-orated on a book entitled "Cul-bertson for the Joneses." Although the article contains averal bands I thought that several hands, I thought that this one would interest you the most. It is rather unusual to find the declarer in a contract of four, but made an overtrick as. well.

The seven of clubs was led, dummy played low, East put on the ten and declarer won. A small heart was led to the queen 29 Amp 31 Map 38 Fals 34 Inti 35 Tint and the lack dropped from the East hand. This gave declarer the tip-off that the hearts were 37 PH 40 Hele 41 Mou divided 5-1. A small diamond was led from dummy to South's king, the ace of hearts was (mb.) 42 Sies cashed-and the bad news was confirmed. It now looked as if declarer

It now looked as if declarer would have to lose two heart tricks, a spade and a club. But remember the title of the article, "A Thinkin' and A Countin'." As Ivy said, there was no use "a countin' " at this point. The only thing left to do was "a thinkin' and a hopin'." Declarer had to hope that the cards were distributed in a cer-tain way. For his plan to work, West had to hold three spades and three diamonds. If he held a singleton rather than a double-ton club, the contract would be assured, but not the extra trick. Declarer ied his singleton assured, but not the extra trick. Declarer led his singleton spade, which East won. A dia-mond was returned, won in dum-my with the queen, and a spade was trumped. A club was led to the king, another spade was trumped, then declarer cashed the ace of diamonds. A low club was led. West had to ruff, and had to play from his ten-eight of hearts back to declarer's of hearts king-nine. back to declarers
