One difference between an expert and an average bridge player is that the expert does not take anything for granted. The average player has been taught that when he and the dummy hold eight trumps, the opponents' trumps normally are divided 3-2. But the expert asks himself "if he can make the hand if the adverse trumps are divided 4-1 or 5-0."

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

If I were an American I should not worry whether Henry Wallace wrote the Gura letters, but I should be terribly worried because most of the people at the Wallace convention looked as if they might have written them. —Rebecca West, British writer. Price control is an attempt to sit on the thermometer. It would stifle production. —Cob. Thomas E. Dwyer of New York. The United States will do everything possible by negotiation to avoid the tragedy of war in the Berlin crisis, but we will not be coerced or intimidated in any way. —Secretary of State Marshall. Congress needs fewer lawyers and more laborers in its membership. —James Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. You cannot win a war with our air superiority and you cannot lose one with it. —J. Stuart Symington, Air Secretary. The issue is not Berlin. The issue is whether the Russians want to halt the European Recovery Program and drive us out of Europe by force. —Maj. Gen. William Donovan, U. S. A.

THOUGHTS

The Russians failed to win Berlin through soft soap and trickery, through lies and propaganda and through terror directed against the Germans. Now they have tried brute force—a threat of disease and starvation. —Louis Glasser, head of the American Military Government's political division in Berlin.

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Something new is the "mechanical kidney," not to be confused with the candidate's artificial heart which bleeds so freely in the campaign year. For the salesman, the tough thing about a war scare is that he may have to take a refresher course in bad manners. A stone lion and its mate have disappeared in gay Montreal, and

Answer to Question No. 2

Yes. By a new law no one can now legally drive a car in California who has not deposited at least $100 in cash or securities (such as liability insurance) with the State Department. Without this his license is suspended. New York has had a similar law working well since 1941 and Kansas and New Hampshire have similar laws. The New Hampshire law is said to have reduced accidents by half.

Answer to Question No. 3

No, because they entrust their own children to young school teachers 18 and 19. They think these estimable, but immature girls quite capable of guiding their children in all ways of life and learning, morals and citizenship. So it would seem inconsistent to think they and their 18-year-old pupils are not old enough to vote. Incidentally, I'm opposed to lowering the voting age.
