constantly active all that time and his organization has outlived many hands with spectacular but short careers. Bernie, by the way, still keeps a business to fall back on in his native Akron, O. He owns a bakery there.

"MEDA": Judith Anderson, who won all of the acting laurels for women last season with her work in the title role of "Medea," has signed a contract with William A. Taub to star in the motion picture version of the play Taub plans to make the film in England, beginning next June, which means that Miss Anderson may be available for Broadway or the road during new season. Incidentally, "Medea" is printed in the Fall issue of Theater Arts magazine.

Bill Dossina's
SPOTLIGHT
Uta Hagen

This department gives the nod today to Jack Gaver of the United Press, who writes under a New York dateline:

When Uta Hagen opens in Pittsburgh on Sept. 6 in the difficult leading role of "A Streetcar Named Desire" she won't be starting out "cold." She has just finished six weeks in the role in the original New York production.

Miss Hagen had a tough assignment in following Jessica Tandy, creator of the role of Blanche, who had won the highest praise for her work. The part was so exacting that Miss Tandy was granted a six-week vacation.

"I'll admit that the prospect terrified me," Miss Hagen said. "But it was a role and opportunity no one could resist, regardless of the circumstances. Creates Own Role."

"I made it a point not to see Miss Tandy in the part. There's a tendency when you watch someone else's performance to drift, even unconsciously, into the pattern set by that person. This can be dangerous because your personality may be entirely different from that of the person you're replacing, although both might be effective in the part."

"In the case of an understudy suddenly jumping in because of illness, a copycat portrayal would be all right, might even be desirable. But my case was different, since I was to play in the national company before entirely new audiences and critics."

"The way I worked was to take the script home and dig into it for six weeks all by myself. That was an experience I always had wanted, working out a play problem all by myself. So many actors don't do a thing by themselves until they come to the first day of rehearsal. Then when their interpretation of the part clashes with that of the director, they have no more definite argument than that 'I don't feel right in the part.' When asked why they can't tell."

Build Up Slowly
"I worked out my own system of study. First I read the play through several times. Then I started to read aloud. After that I went through the play scene by scene, asking myself what my intentions were with each line, each scene. When I thought I knew what Blanche thought and felt, I built my characterization step by step."

"When I finally got to rehearsals under Elia Kazan's direction, I had a well-defined notion of what I was doing, so that when there were differences of opinion I at least had arguments to support my view. Sometimes they stood up and sometimes they didn't, but I feel that my preparation made it easier for both myself and the director."

UTA HAGEN

The national company of Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer prize play will stay at the Nixon theater in Pittsburgh for two weeks. Then "Street Car" will go to Chicago, opening Sept. 21 for what is hoped will be a long run.

RADIO: The United Press said today that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the former president, and her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, will begin a national radio show, "Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt," on Oct. 4.

The program, to be heard five afternoons a week over the ABC network's coast-to-coast system, is available for commercial sponsorship, ABC said. The network said the two stars would receive "a considerable amount of money for their broadcasts."

The mother and daughter will discuss national and world events, food, travel, housing, fashions, recreation, the theater, literature, and education, ABC officials said.

The shows will originate from Hollywood, where Mrs. Boettiger makes her home, and wherever Mrs. Roosevelt happens to be. What Blanche thought and felt, I built my characterization step by step.
