About that musical version of "The Shop Around the Corner" which Metro is about to make: which Metro is about to make.
This charming story, which once starred Margaret Sullavan, Jimmy Stewart, and Frank Morgan, really won't emerge as a musical this time in the strict sense at all It will retain its dramatic flavor, with merely some incidental music thrown in. Frankie Sinatra, who is crazy about the yarn and wants to do it, may lose out. The studio is considering Van John-son—and also Bob Walker, with Van out in front at the moment. But Judy Garland is almost a cinch to make this ahead of "An-nie Get Your Gun" because they're having trouble getting a leading man for "Annie". Everyone want-ed Roy Rogers, but they can't get him. As we noted the other day, M. G. M. is eyeing old tests of Howard Keel, a good-looking, lanky American lad who played
