HOPES TO DREAM TONIGHT

Boyle's First Mermaid Chase Ends Suddenly

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK. (P) This morning I and hid the sun. The gulls flew was sleeping peacefully, and all of a sudden I started dream-ing. I dreamt I was swimming ing. I dreamt I was swimming again in the sapphire seas of the south Pacific. A light breez dim-waved wanly. She held up her arms and looked at me with a mocking smile. I dived and swam after her. But I had no pled the waves and the sun shone warm and fair. White sea shone warm and fair, while sea gulls wheeled overhead with faint clamorous cries, or rested on the surface, rising and fallbreath left and I was strangling

Then I woke up. My face was wet and my arm were tangled in the bed clothing. Frances, my wife, was standing over me, holding a small glass of water in her hand. "Wake up, Rover," she said,

"you have to go out and earn us a living." "But why did you have to drip water on my face?" I asked. "To stop your awful snoring." said Frances. "I was desperate." "Couldn't you just've made me turn over on my side? "Listen, Rover Boy, I've been turning you over and over like pockets along. "I must've left my comb on the beach," I mumbled.
