Answer to Question No. 1

Yes, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen says: "For someone to say, after marriage: 'I gave my vow at the altar; yes, but since I am now in love with someone else, God would not want me to keep my vow', is like saying: 'I promised not to steal my neigh-bor's chickens, but since I fell in love with that Plymouth Rock, God would not want me to keep my promise." Wise counsel

Answer to Question No. 2

Yes. Nearly all the 700 million dollars, speat annually for cosmetics and beautifying the person is spent by women. Women also spend vastly more for clothes, hats, fancy shoes and jewelry than men. Nothing wrong with this since women have always been the receptive ones and men the active searchers for a mate. Still some women are reasonably active in this field. In fact, their effort to look attractive and charming is their way of doing the searching. Of course, some men are pretty hot showoffs, too, and are now even using cosmetics and perfume.
