Mr. Henny Youngman c/o The Diamond Horseshoe New York, N. Y. Dear Henny:

The other midnight I dropped in to see how your act was going over, and judging by what the flate" Dr. Gallup used to call "consumer reaction," you were "c doing fine. But down near the end of your turn something happened that worries me a little. As you undoubtedly remember, there was a bald-headed gent sitting at a ringside table who heckled you several times. At heckled you several times. At first you paid no attention, but after a while you did what every enoughlish does a will let him. omedian does — you let him

"That's a beautiful head of skin," you told him, "but the next time you order a toupee, get one with brains." And more the same.

Well, it wasn't much of a con-test—it seldom is between the pro and the amateur—but when the customer finally paid his check and left. I heaved the wellknown sigh of relief. I'm always ittery when a patron gets mad at one of my comedians. Let me tell you why.

Back in 1909, a Chinese comic named Ah Hoon was playing at the famous little theater down on Doyer Street, and to hear my laundryman tell it, he was a combination of Fred Allen, Milton Berle and yourself.

Ah Hoon, it seems, was a member of the On Leong tong, and night after night he needled the bigshots in the rival Hip Sing tong, which was competing with his own outfit for the neighborhood opium trade.

Naturally enough, the Hip Singers didn't relish having their the Morning Star Mission, to warn the comic that a lot of his blood would wind up where he wasn't unless he went easy on them. But Ah Hoon only laughed and said, "I'm an artist, sir, and no one can interfere with my God-given prerogative to create as the mood and the malice move the Hip Singers, they took a vote and decided that Ah Hoon's next playing date would be Keith's Celestial. And, forthwith, word was sent to the comic's house-keeper to serve him her best din-ner Dec. 30th because it was going to be his last. The lady passed this information on to the police.

By curtain time on the 30th, it was standing room-only on Doyer St., word having sifted through the back alleys that Ah Hoon was going to be killed on-stage. But thanks to the uniformed policemen who were stationed throughout the audience, the death scene didn't come off. Bight after the show. Sgt.

Right after the show, Sgt. Coughlin escorted the frightened funnyman through an under-ground passage to his boarding house on Chatham Square, and carefully examined his bedroom. As the room was on the fourth about the bo'sun's chair, he knew how Ah Hoon had been killed: His enemies had lowered a man down the side of the blank wall facing his bedroom, and for hours the murderer had waited air, until the comedian got up to go to the washroom in the hall. And that, my dear Henny, is what happened to one comedian who got a little too gay with the customers. Cordially. BILLY ROSE.
