who headed the wartime atomic bomb project, tells of one such success. Addressing the National Association of Suggestion Systems, he recalled a Milwaukee workman whose suggestion made it possible to press a cer-tain piece of steel within toler-ances of one-millionth of an inch. Without this idea, said Gen. Groves, a vital atomic plant Groves, a vital atomic plant worth $400,000,000 would have been idle.

The suggestion box is a competition of ideas. Thousands of those ideas have paid off, both to those who conceived them and to the concerns to which they were made. • —Omaha World-Herald.

Answer to Question No. 1

No. precisely the opposite. Psychologists Jeanette C. Friend and E. A. Haggard have made an extensive study of job satisfaction and dissatisfaction. They found that workers who especially longed for praise and approval came mostly from unhappy homes where there was much

This lead them to want bosses with the qualities of kindness they had been deprived of As Germans always have used the Ruhr's industrial potential for war, our French friends feel they would continue to do so. Superstitious, eh? in childhood.

Answer to Question No. 2
No, probably more stupid. A real authority, Dr. Walter B.
Pitkin says: "Unless we change present trends, five generations present trends, five generations hence your descendants (if you have any) will be the stupidest great-great-grandchildren of the stupidest grandchildren of the stupidest grandchildren of the stupidest children of parents now living." Since high school and college graduates are dying out while first to fourth grade graduates are having twice as many children as are needed to replace the parents, how can it replace the parents, how can it be otherwise? Answer to Question No. 3

No. In one experiment colored No. In one experiment colored lights were turned on in the midst of a sumptuous dinner where the guests were eating with gusto.
