his mouth for fear it is be taken as a confession.
What does the American male think about the birds and the bees? You don't have to be a Freud to know. Just read Dr. Kinsey. If his scientific poil of the masculine libido hasn't made cay more respectable, it at least sex more respectable, it at least hasn't diminished its popularity. hasn't diminished its bobusites.

Curious ladies are still snapping up copies of this survey as eagerly as poolroom owners used to buy calendars displaying "Scottember Morn." "September Morn."

And now along comes Archi-bald Crossley, the business re-TODAY AND TOMORROW

NEW YORK. (P) It's a goldfish searcher, with a study of Mr. life today for the average America's dreams, wants and habits in commercial matters. It turns out that the common man is quite a market, and spends a considerable share of the family budget.

Yes, sir, he's some guy . . . this schizophrenic fellow, Mr.

America.

The Crossley poll, made for Argosy Magazine, shows, for example, that papa wants to smell sweet, just like mama does. At least most papas do. Some 57 per cent use mouthwashes, regularly or occasionally. More than 59 per cent smear or pour something on their scalp to ornament or annoint the shrubbery thereon. And 42.5 per cent now use de-double-oreasted as single-breasted.

Most men still wear pajamas, top and bottom, in the winter, but only 35.4 per cent don both pieces in summer. Only 6.7 per cent sleep raw the year round. This custom appears limited to robust young bachelors who live in the eastern part of the country. The boy's with a southern Paradise is the increasing flow of Red army deserters out of eastern Germany—evidently people who can't stand pros-perity.

Lumber is sagging, a late trade survey finds. This also is the experience of the GI who moved in before the plaster and woodwork dried.

With the wholesale shift of personnel in Congress, pumpkin pie may once more be ordered fearlessly. It is unnecessary to clear this with Mundt.

A DISTANT quality creeps into our relations with the old chum. China. More and more we seem to lean to the poet's view: "Oh, east is east, and west is west . . . is that bad?" Nature outdoes man in just Now take booze. Well, only 68 per cent do, and beer is the top draw. But 79 per cent of the men like tobacco. But only 4.8 out of 100 chew it anymore, and as for snuffing it—only seven men out of 1000 do that.

It would seem the average

It would seem the average man is handler about the house than his wife would admit. Anythan his wife would admit. Anyway, 449 per cent listed home repairing as their chief pastime. A dismal 3.9 per cent share the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's enthusiasm for stamp collecting. A stout 39.3 per cent said they went fishing, and 29.7 per cent went hunting, at least six times a year. went hunting, at least six times a year. An encouraging note for those who dislike all exercise: 29.9 per cent went on record that they didn't engage in any sport that often.

They're neater than you might suspect, these males. It's true that 73 per cent still don't wear garters, but 40 per cent shave at least once a day and another 30 per cent scrape 'em off three times a week or more. And 44 per cent wear a tie clipor own one.

And 44 per cent wear a tie clipor own one.

About 93 per cent pack a wallet or billfold. What do they spend the dough on? Well, 79 per cent own life insurance, 62 per cent an automobile, 58 per cent an electric refrigerator, 46 per cent a vacuum cleaner, 26 per cent an automatic washing machine, 25 per cent a combination radio-phonograph, and 3.3 per cent an electric blanket.

Who buys all these things? Crossley says men do a lot of it. He says 60 to 70 per cent buy their own haberdashery, hair goo, and toothbrushes. Some 80 per cent buy their own booze (mama must pick up the check for the other 20 per cent), 91 per cent select their automobiles, and 85 per cent choose their own life insurance policies.

One thing is omitted from this Kinsey-of-commerce's probe into the average male's material yearnings—how a man can get the dough to buy more of what he wants.

This is the survey Mr. Ameri-

he wants.

Found to Have Close Tie

By ROBERT QUILLEN

LONG AGO when lodge initia-tions were foolish and sometimes dangerous, a candidate was told that he would be branded on the back. He was stripped to the waist and tied to a column; he saw the forge and smelled the iron rod heating; and when the hot iron was applied to a piece of pork skin, while an icicle was drawn across back, he felt the pain and fainted.

If you cut your finger, there is no pain until your nerves telegraph a report of the injury to your brain. The pain doesn't exist until you are conscious
