When the traveling score was inspected, he noted that one South player had been set two tricks.  "That is impossible," he declared, "unless the declarer revoked or something."  West did not grant his point. Having seen a lot more bridge than South, he considered practically anything possible. They got hold of the unfortunate declarer, who told them his tale of woe and ineptness. He too had received a diamond lead, but took it with his A. Next he finessed the heart J to the Q and won the returned diamond with the K. This time he scored the spade A and K and led a third spade, which East won with the Q. The diamond 6 was led, so that the Q and J took tricks, and a club shift then enabled East to set the contract two tricks.  Nothing very spectacular about any one of South's bad plays, but together they added up to magnanimous largesse for their opponents.  Your Week-End Question  Why is it that every once in a while a player, having given a 2-No Trumps answer to an opening suit bid of two, will pass the next suit call of his partner at the level of three and thereby cause his side to lose a sure game? When he came down, Merry smiled warmly at him, and said as they went out into the hot sunshine, "You drive, Mike. I'll sit in the middle."

Mike nodded and slipped beneath the wheel of her car. The air was fragrant with gardens and woods and fields; the day was bright and sunny and warmly was bright and sunny and warmly line. And it church bells laid its own charm on the scene. From all over the town they came — deep - toned, mellow; brisk and hearty. The church was of ancient red
