Fanatic Zeal Is Requisite to Really Big Achievement

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"THERE is no excellence," quoth our fathers, "without great labor." And they might have added: "No great thing is done without fanatic zeal."

Developing that zeal requires more than a genius for leadership; one must also have a deep knowledge of psychology.

Study the history of strange religious movements since the beginning of this era and you will find that all were built by the same pattern. The leader knew the workings of the human mind and offered bait that human nature could not resist. He made virtues of selfishness, avarice, malice and vanity.

"Join us," said he, "and you will be one of God's chosen people. The rich and educated and high-born have always looked down on you and treated you with contempt, but as one of our group you will be superior to them. If you have been downtrodden and despised, you will find in a wonderful and blessed experience to realize that you are superior to the high and mighty."

Next he said to them: "You haven't been getting your share of life's good things. The scheme of things has cheated you. The rich and powerful feast while you hunger. But your day is coming, and then the situation will be reversed. They will suffer and you will rejoice."

(Emerson hated this doctrine. He said it was equivalent to saying: "You may sin now, but we'll sin when our turn comes.")

Finally, the prophet says to his followers: "To envy the fortunate and hate them because of envy would be wicked, but you may hate them because they are against God. Cultivate hatred and give malice free rein, for it is a virtue. Loathe and to injure the base creatures who will not join your crowd. Since you alone are righteous, all who oppose you must be wicked and deserving of ruin."

That in essence is the appeal

British Kings Once Used French Title

By HASKIN

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing the Long Beach Press-Telegram, Information Bureau, 315 E. 5th St., Long Beach, Calif. Please enclose three (3) cents for return postage.

Q. WHO WAS the last English king to call himself King of France? C. I. D.

A. George III was the last to be styled king of France. In 1801 the title was dropped by the king and the fleur-de-lis removed from the royal arms. The connection between the two nations began with William of Normandy, who conquered England in 1066, but Edward III was the first king to claim the French throne. This was in 1340.

Q. Who wrote the song "Kingdom Coming?" F. B. S.

A. The song "Kingdom Coming or the Year of Jubilo" was written by Henry C. Work (1832-84) and was popular as far back as 1862. It has been used as a theme song of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy and in the motion picture "Meet Me in St. Louis." Work was a Connecticut Yankee, a music printer, who often composed by setting music-type directly.

Q. Which is the oldest continent? R. V. E.

A. North America is the oldest. It was the first continent to emerge from the sea.

Q. How high has a German V-2 rocket gone? W. M.

A. The altitude record of 114 miles was set by a German V-2 rocket fired at White Sands Proving Ground, N. M., on Dec. 17, 1946. The recording instruments in the warhead of the rocket were not recovered until almost two years later.

Q. How many state legislatures convene this year in January? E. F. D.

A. Forty-two state legislatures begin regular sessions in January of this year.

that won power and glory for the Communists in Russia and the Nazis in Germany. In what ever parcel it may be used, the converts it wins are fanatics, burning with a white-hot zeal. And they are never overcome except by a zeal that equals their own.

There'll Always Be Two of Us, Says Telegrapher

By HAL BOYLE

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 31. (AP) From the upstairs room between midnight and dawn comes a clickety clack.

It sounds in the traffic room of the Western Union and nobody hears it but an old-timer man leaning toward retirement. He is one of a race of heroes dying out in our lifetime. And nobody but they bother to know that they are going.

"Clickety clack—clickety clack—clickety clack."

Through the dead silences of the night come the messages. A boy from Germany says he's arriving home with a fraulein wife—a father in California says in 40 words that mother is dying—and makes the 10th word "love." From Kansas City a husband lets his wife know he arrived by plane okay on a foggy field.

"Clickety clack—clickety clack—clickety clack."

And bad news speeds through the senseless night. And a telegrapher, a lone man in a doomed trade, takes the news down—and passes it on.

What men they were—and how few there are left—the old telegraphers. They stitched the American continent together with their clickety clack—clickety clack. Now the old timers are cropping out one by one. Bright young girls tap out by hand on automatic transmitting machines the messages that used to go by Morse wire.

In the old days the Morse telegraphers used to grow gradually deafened by the staccato music of a sounder, whose noise was enlarged by a Prince Albert tobacco can stuck in to sharpen the clickety clack—the clickety clack.

"But we have to leave out the tobacco can now," said Lustré Delane Phillips, 56, who has been interpreting the clickety clacks since he was 14 years old.

"They found the sound carried too far. Somebody passing by outside who understood the Morse code might pick up a private message."

Phillips is the son of a country printer who named his children after the phenomenon of light. First came Hugh (hue) and then Day, Ray, Lustré, and Fair. A seventh child broke the pattern by naming herself Juanita. She wanted to avoid the family's sunshine prejudice.

Like all vanishing knights of the dwindling "dot and dash" empire, Lustré has his memories. He remembers the time when the clickety clack was the only way the news of the world was spelled out.

"I copied Jack Johnson's fight with Jim Jeffries at Reno for a country weekly," he recalls. "We had a special edition on the streets within an hour. That was record time for a weekly."

Phillips has been working nights for more than 30 years—the midnight to morning tick.
