

Grable to Star in New Film

Haver to Dance With Her Again

By EDITH GWYNN
HOLLYWOOD—Twentieth Century-Fox has another picture in the offing for Betty Grable, but meantime she'll do "Three Little Girls in Blue" for which this studio just paid $50,000 smackers. And for the second time in their careers, Betty and June Haver will be team-mates—or rather, dance mates—for the cameras. A third femme, who resembles both these blondes is now being sought to be the third little girl in the picture. Grable will play an air-line hostess in this one.

GRABLE

Al Jolson and Oscar Levant have been iced the temperatures around her even more—with recent feuds on their air-show. But they're thawing out.

The Sheila Ryan-Eddie Norris reconciliation must really be complete. He's sitting for his portrait—and Sheila is doing the painting.

"Mrs. Mike," the best seller long on the fire, is finally at the production stage. And Dick Powell, who was going to star in it for R. K. O., will now put the picture through United Artists.

There's a move on to try to buy the dog, it pulled him down a flight of steps, breaking Lud's left arm!

Band-leader Freddy Martin has recorded his tune, "The Humphrey Bogart Rhumba" which has been such a hit with local celebs at the Coconut Grove. No wonder!

The lyric mentions just about every movie star in the business. It's a cute number—we've heard it.

Ava Gardner and Farley Granger were a heavy date for the big party producer Joe Pasternak's threw.

Hear tell that there'll soon be a new product on the market called "Spray-A-Wave" which will use a gag advertising line, "You Don't Have To Be A Twin To Use It."

Robert Taylor, finished with "The Conspirator" in London, sails for his home in the Hollywoods next week.

Susan Perry (who used to be Candy Toxton) has moved in with Mel Torme's folks until he gets back from his tour next month. Then these two will get married.

There'll be a re-make of that great old picture "Skippy" and little Butch Jenkins is set to be the star of it.

The choice of Jerome Courtland to play Humphrey Bogart's side-kick in "Tokyo Joe" could really be called "type casting."

Southland, who has been at Columbia for some time, but never got any real breaks until recently, actually was Tokyo "Joe" for many a month with the Army of Occupation—and was hospitalized there for ages.

When June Haver does her tour of the straw hat theater circuit come Summer, Bill Schallert, son of the L. A. Times drama editor, will accompany her.

He's carving out an actor's career for himself.

Sign of the times note: Joan Miller, who plays the lady lush in "Criss Cross" with B. Lancaster and Stephen McNally (and she's good, too!) was seen showing her rave review notices to pals WHILE waiting in line for unemployment check at the Hollywood Social Security office. And sad to report, the line grows longer daily.

Christopher Morley's next book will be out pronto. It's about a literary agent and called, "The Man Who Made Friends with Himself."

David Goodis, who wrote "The Dark Passage" is in Philadelphia working on his new tome titled, "Wanted"—destined for the screen.

White Slavers Said Luring German Girls
HAMBURG, Germany—(AP)—The weekly woman's magazine "Die Frau" declared today white slavers are trapping German girls by offering them bogus jobs abroad as housemaids.

The magazine said it had proof that girls recruited in Western Germany by some private foreign employment agencies had been "sold into brothels" after they left Germany.

Dinning Sisters at Orpheum

THE DINNING SISTERS

The singing Dinning sisters—Ginger, Lou, and Joan—will appear at the Orpheum theater today with Buddy Rich's orchestra. They broadcast frequently on network programs and on several Chicago stations.

Bill Doubrava's Spotlight Chorus and Cooper

In its first concert under the direction of Walter Heermann, the Madison Civic chorus Wednesday night gave a telling performance of Johannes Brahms' "Nenia" and a good account of itself in its other numbers. Margaret Rupp Cooper, harpist, scored a signal success as glee soloist, earning the right to play a trio of encores.

Cold weather probably was responsible for the comparatively small size of the audience; only a few more than 500 found their way to the Masonic auditorium for the concert.

The chorus excelled itself in the Brahms work, a funeral hymn with a text by Goethe. In its first time, the music and the chorus conveyed a sense of triumph over death—a wry triumph, perhaps, since even "Beauty must fade... the Perfect must die."

Heermann handled the interplay of voices deftly, the basses rising gradually as the sopranos faded out and the tenors in their turning supplanting contraltos. There was no abruptness, only a steady flow of music.

The chorus opened the concert with a group of Bach works, rising in most of them to Heermann's exacting demands for careful shading and strict intonation. The capella singing was at its best in the second and third of four chorales ("O How Cheating" and "O Morning Star").

The group did well, too, with Handel's "Thompson's Alleluia"; Deems Taylor's "May Day Carol," a set of folk songs. The "Big Punch" and "I'm 17 Come Sunday," which closed the program.

Mrs. Cooper had chosen wisely sharp music—not the transcriptions of piano music which too often comprise a harpist's repertoire. Perhaps the best examples was John Thomas' "Variations on a Welsh Melody," with its interesting echo effects.

Mrs. Cooper showed, too, the variety of quality her instrument can produce—melancholy to delicate, a minor key, sprightliness, and a racy, and racy power. This called for sound technique and a thorough understanding of the instrument; the soloist had both.

Her encores were "Prelude No. 2," Grandjany, "Romance," Camille, and "Drifting Snow," Hooper.

At the concert's end, Heermann saw to it that Margaret Ottersen, the accompanist, shared the audience's applause. She had a right to it.

NEXT: The fourth concert on the Madison Civic Music series will be at 8:30 p. m. Sunday, Feb. 20, when the Madison Civic Symphony orchestra will play, with pianist Peter Paul Lohanich as soloist. The place again will be the Masonic auditorium.
