HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 5. (A) Mrs, Herman D. Burd, 29-year-old wife of an Army private first class, doesn't live in a shoe. But she's just had her 11th baby and hopes the service will grant an extension of leave to her husband so he "can be with the children."

The youngsters — two of whom are abed with pneumonia—range in age from four days to 13 years.

Married in 1935, the couple had their first child a year later. They lost one at birth in 1942.

Burd, who is 32, says he enlisted in the Army in December, 1947, because he couldn't support the family. As a Pfc. he draws 346 a month, and his wife receives a dependent's allowance of $260.

Knowland has contended that the only way the Senate can avoid filibustering against civil rights legislative is to change its rules.

Byrd said the Democrats decided to let the rules committee move in its own time to bring out a rules change resolution.

It is the general understanding, Byrd said, that the committee may approve Wednesday a resolution altering the rules to let at two-thirds vote curb debate at any time.

Since the Democrats outnumber the Republicans 54 to 42 in the Senate, unanimous Democratic proposition to Knowland's molecular to the state of the rules and the state of the rules and the committee which hopes to complete hearings on the bill by Feb. 10. Testimony is being taken day and night in an effort to make that deadline.
