Bond Price Sag Begins Third Week

NEW YORK $-(\mathcal{A})$ — The bond market price floor settled lower again Monday, leaving nearly 120 issues stranded in the minus column With more than 30 issues de-clining I to 3 points, the market carried into the third week the steady price sag that began Jan. 24. The ratio of declining to advancing issues today stood about

Despite the poor performance of most obligations Monday, 14 managed to hit new highs for 1948-49, against only 9 new lows for the 13 months. The day's trade totaled $3,930,-000, compared with $2,020,000 in Saturday's short session, and $4, 100,000 Friday.

Has Plenty of Luck,

All Plenty Bad CHICAGO (UP) -- If you don't believe in bad luck, ask the man who has it, Douglas C. Yale. Using fingernail clippers to pick a lock box in a post office, Yale dropped the clippers. The noise attracted a guard and led to his arrest. The box number was 1313. In 1939, Yale offered a business man's card to police who ar-rested him for attempted auto theft. The man named on the card was the desk sergeant's brother-in-law. Once he had picked a lock box in a post office successfully, when a letter dropped to the floor. It was addressed to the man who stopped to pick it up for him. large number of playwrights and must have seeh a lot of plays. And she remembered well what she had read and heard. This was the story of a romantic quadrangle, its corners a woman and three men, its area four scenes. A quadrangle is a plane --no depth. So was "Favorite Stranger." It is where four actors who managed to make it seem funny part of the time, in spite of the inadequacies of the author's im-agination. They were Kay Francis, as an efficient but lonely statistician; Paul Langton, as her egotistical, spoiled, and philandering hus-band; Gordon Mills, as a very proper naval officer who took care of her loneliness, and Joel Ashley, as a doctor who had the right prescription for getting rid of bot the cime and claiming rid care of her loneliness, and Joel
