But since everyone has a large number of abilities and could succeed at a number of occupations—and the person low in all abilities is practically non-existent — you should ask yourself what can you best train for, the size of the pay envelope the size of the pay envelope, the permanence of the job and chances of advancement.

Answer to Question No. 2

No. Psychologist Alice M Hunt by technical methods tested the opinions and attitudes of 62 married couples and 62 pairs of unmarried men and women chosen at random, on 76 questions on life, temperament and character. The married couples were more nearly alike than the unmarried. But this only the unmarried. But this only agrees with many other studies showing like tends to marry like. The couple married many years were no more alike than those recently married. Indeed the older married couples were elightly more wilke. slightly more unlike. Answer to Question No. 3

This is one of the oldest and hardest problem in character building. It depends chiefly on the particular boy and girl and the particular parents and their wisdom. Some boys and girls can be trusted almost from the cradle up while others have to be coached, watched and even

War and depression, shifts in population, and changing rela-tionships between federal and state governments, coupled with. amazing scientific progress, are listed by the Commission as the major elements underlying this expansion. But it is hard to con-ceive of any government agency quadrupling its personnel and increasing its spending program thirty-two-fold over a few short years without a good deal of c structural jerry-building and a good deal of duplication.—New York Times.

Q. DID BARBARA FRIETCHIE actually use the words. "Shoot if you must this old gray head?" L. N.

A. "Shoot, if you must, this old gray head" is a line credited by Whittier to Barbara Frietchie. the wife of John Caspar Frietchie of Frederick, Md. The Civil War episode involved Gen. Stonewall Jackson. It may be of interest to know that many years ago, the nephew of Barbara Frietchie observed that his aunt was a bedridden invalid at the time of the event related in Whittier's poem, and that it was not possible for her to have acted as she does in the narrative

Q. What makes an apple turn brown after it has been peeled and sliced? H. F. A. When an apple is cut, a substance called "tyrosin" is re-leased which combines with oxygen in the air to form a dark pigment, "melanin." This is what gives the cut surface its brown
