Q. What is the "Musical Offering"? L. R.
A. "Musical Offering" is the English for "Das Musikalische Opfer," a work composed by Johann Sebastian Bach in 1747 and dedicated to King Frederick Il of Prussia. The work contains a number of contrapuntal pieces based upon a theme of the king's invention, upon which Bach had extemporized during his visit to Potsdam in 1747.

"Okay, killjoy," said Eleanor, and we went home. But for the next two days she didn't talk to me and, if I hadn't proved it by living with her, there'd have been no living with her.

But to get back to the last sentence of the second paragraph—the one about getting a little respect from the missus.

During the ten years of our marriage, Eleanor has been about as impressed with me as Joe Louis is impressed by Mickey Rooney.

Mickey Rooney.

The night before we left for Huenos Aires, I suggested to Ben Sirotsky, a spritely newspaperman-about-town, that I'd like to see something of Rio's seamier and less seemly sidetis nickel dancehalls and dives. And so, starting at midnight And so, starting at midnight, Ben took us on a post graduate Cook's tour that wound up at Nellie's Castle.

Sirotsky introduced me to Nellie's sweet man, and when he heard my name, his mouth opened like a steam shovel. "We are deeply honored, Mr. Rose," he said, "and the champagne's on the house." on the house." I looked over at Eleanor and
