"But I don't drive a locomotive!" you say. "What do you mean 'better for me?' "

Consider the two steam locomotives pictured above. At the top is an Illinois Central locomotive of 1921; below it you see a current model 50 per cent more powerful.

The modern locomotive pulls heavier trains faster, helps handle freight so efficiently that the average cost to shippers in 1948 was less than 1/5¢ per ton-mile more than in 1921.

It's efficient equipment such as this that prevents today's high material and wage costs from raising freight rates to equally high levels.

This same efficient equipment enabled 40,000 Illinois Central workers to earn 106 per cent more last year than they did in 1921.

With sufficient earnings to continue improving our equipment and property, the Illinois Central and its workers will strive to earn your continued patronage and friendship.
