Newspaper

Q. WHAT was the first Sunday newspaper in America? L. R. A. The first was the Baltimore Weekly Museum published in 1797. It ran for only a few weeks. The New York Observer, begun in 1809, was more suc-cessful and lasted about two years. Sunday papers at that time were condemned and did not become popular until after the Civil War.

Q. Did some of the early Mormon migrants actually travel on foot to Salt Lake City? E. O. R. In the early migration of the Latter-Day Saints from the east to Sait Lake City, those who had not sufficient means to buy horses used handcarts to transport their goods. They pushed or pulled these carts across the desert to the Sall Lake Valley, the average daily journey being about 20 miles. Travel by hand-carts lasted from 1856 to 1860.

Q. What states have Panhandles? K. C. B.

A. Several states have long, narrow tracts to which the name Panhandle is given. They are Texas, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Missouri, Idaho, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Florida.

Yes. Numerous tests show AMONG the six "top" women of 1948 chosen by the Wommen to be more aggresive, adventurous, confident in themen's National Press Club last selves in most situations. They week was Grandma Moses, And are the natural explorers, solhere, indeed, is a pin-up girl diers, business-builders and worthy to be America's Sweetfighters. However, in social situations, parties, introductions, Grandma Moses is the answer speaking in public, girls and women are, as a rule, more selfto pessimists about America's future. Spritely and gay, she confident than men. They know better than boys and men how to handle an awkward social wears her 88 years with a dash of mischief, moving among her situation—especially when the swain in love doesn't know how to propose. Then she takes his hand and leads him unconenchanting canvases as nimbly as she has moved for a lifetime among her spiced pickles and sciously (often unconscious) to jellies. Who says that American democracy has grown old and tired, timid and conserva-tive? Take a look at Grandma Moses, launching into the Great the altar.

Answer to Question No. 2

A grand way to put it. All types of totalitarianism—which includes Communism—believe the people do not know what is good for them and must be ruled by the elect (not elected) few. Democracy believes people know how to govern themselves through their own elected (not elect) representatives better than any ruler, however wise and unselfish can govern them. and unsellish can govern them.
