IT HAS BECOME a habit for federal officials promoting compulsory health insurance in health insurance. federal officials promoting compulsory health insurance in the United States to minimize or ignore its costs. The original Wagner · Murray · Dingell bill played down the costs. The last of the series under this name left them out altogether. Effort has been persistently made for the past 10 years to sell the American public something call-ing for a huge expense without giving an accurate forecast of the ultimate cost. That may be ingenious, but it is poor public policy. However, analysis is now and then furnished by independent sources. W. Rulon Williamson, sources. W. Rulon Williamson former actuary of the Social Se torrier Board, says there could be a high of 18 per cent of pay roll, a plausible medium of 12% per cent, and a low, hardly to be expected, of 7 per cent when years hence the program is fully under way. These benefits include both medical care and cash tor.

Mr. Williamson points out that a great deal depends on the lib-erality both of the formula and of administrators, and hence estimates must vary widely. But in his view the total cost of social security, with health insurance added to the liberalized old-age employment compensation, could

The greatly mounting costs of the British and New Zealand health insurance programs indi-cate that the United States would be faced with the same problem. If introduced here and really made effective, health insurance for many years would probably require much more tax money than old-age or unem-ployment insurance. ANYBODY want to buy a bolt of sari cloth from India? Well, there's one up in my attle and it's for sale cheap. And with the transfer of the course of the co it, at no extra charge, goes a framed photo of the Taj Mahal. What am I mumbling about? Well ... While Eleanor and I were in

New Delhi, we did the usual amount of shopping around for souvenirs and gifts and, after casing and combing the big stores, we went looking for od-dities in the side-street shops. Times must be some better. Attendance at our church is fallin' off an' I'm sure it's because members are gettin' a little more of this world's goods.

"This is an expensive trip— planes, hotels, postcards."
"Real gents never worry about price tags," said my wife,

Next morning, Tiki Oberi, amiable owner of the Maiden's Hotel at which we were stopping, asked if we wouldn't like to see the Taj Mahal and, before he could change his mind, we were sitting next to him in a gas buggy, dodging camels and sacred hamburgers on the road to Agra, 130 miles away. En route, we stopped for a

"When you wanted to see the world," I grumbled, "I went to the Pan Am office and shelled out for plane tickets. I didn't tell you to go up on the roof Around mid afternoon, Tiki put his foot on the brake and said, "There she is." And there she was—the Taj Mahal in persne was—the Taj Mahal in person and perfection. Against the blue sky, it looked like embroidery in frozen milk, and I found myself remembering a guidebook quotation: "This is where the architect ends and the jewelr beging." begins."

Inside the white marble cenotaph were two bejeweled coffins, and Tiki gave us a quick run through of the story behind structure.

"The Shahjahan," he said, "started building this mauso-leum in 1630 for his favorite wife, and it took 20,000 workmen 18 years to complete it. In it, he placed his wife's coffin— the smaller one in the center and then, not wishing to intrude on her privacy after his own death, he started a duplicate Taj in black marble on the other side of the Jumna River. But his son, afraid that this might bank-rupt the country, locked him up in the Red Fort and, when Shah-jahan died, he was enshrined next to his wife. The wider tomb is his.'

Eleanor was silent as we got back into the car, but I could tell something was percolating

Sociolo-gists Bennet, Ohio State and Tumin, Princeton, in their magnifi-cent "Social Life," point out that even writers who should know better speak of the "hunger drive" and the "acquisitive drive" as though they were the same—due to inborn bodily needs. But there is no inborn desire to acquire things. The desire for money is learned. The craving for food is natural, but not

No, or more would vote, which hardly half do now. The late Carrie Chapman reminded all of use that women have gained the following new rights: "To vote, hold office, own and control property, collect wages, make a will, practice a profession, share in guardianship of their children, be a witness in court after marriage, freedom of speech, freedom to organize, to petition, to follow economic opportunities, higher wages, equal educa-tion with men, equal representation, equality in marriage rights, equality in social status." Lades, do you realize your grandmothers had few, if any, of these rights?
