Modern '49-ers Read Across U.S.

Modern Forty-Niners are the four summer book readers shown above at the Madison free library. The Forty-Niners are older boys and girls who like to read about pioneer days. To encourage summer book reading, the library gives each reader a paper covered wagon to move across the map of the United States as fast as he or she "reads" the trip. Anyone in the age group can participate. James McCarthy, 8, of 2059 Van Hise ave., is looking at a book held by sister, Josephine, 12, (seated) while Robert Harrington, 11, of 305 W. Main st., points out her wagon to sister, Patricia, 12. The program is a part of the library's summer reading activities.

Among the recent releases of serious music is one of the most exciting in a long time. It is the final scene of Strauss' "Salome" as sung by Ljuba Welltsch with the accompaniment of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra under Pritz Reiner.

The music requires wide vocal range, and Miss Welltsch sings in every sector with a glowing, impassioned voice. The orchestra plays the complex accompaniment with a wealth of richness and with a fine relationship to the voice. And the mechanics of recording
